CZECHOSLOVAKS RECOGNIZED AS NATION BY BRITAIN

And Their Three Armies as Allied Forces Engaged in Regular Warfare.

KAISER TO TAKE PETROGRAD

German Papers Confess Peace Treaty Has Failed and Predict New War.

REDS FORM TRIUMVIRATE

Soviet Congress Confers "Unlimited Power" on Lenine, Trotzky, and Zinovieff.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The British Government has issued a declaration formally recognizing the Czechoslovaks as an allied nation and the Czechoslovak armies as an allied force regularly waging warfare against the Central Powers.

These armies are fighting in Russia, France, and Italy.

The declaration reads:

Since the beginning of the war the Czechoslovak nation has resisted the common enemy by every means in its power.

The Czechoslovaks have constituted a considerable army, fighting on three different battlefields, and attempting in Russia and Siberia to arrest the Germanic invasion. In consideration of its efforts to achieve independence, Great Britain regards the Czechoslovaks as an allied nation and recognizes the unity of the three Czechoslovak armies as an allied and belligerent army waging regular warfare against Austria-Hungary and Germany.

Great Britain also recognizes the right of the Czechoslovak national Council as the supreme organ of Czechoslovak national interests and as the present trustee of the future Czechoslovak government to exercise supreme authority over this allied and belligerent army.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The British Government's recognition of the Czechoslovak armies as an Allied force regularly waging warfare against the Central Powers, which follows similar action by France and Italy, is a forerunner of recognition also by the United States.

This has already been indicated by a formal statement issued on Aug. 3 by Frank L. Polk, then Acting Secretary of State, but understood to have been written by President Wilson, which said: "Military action is admissible in Russia now only to render such protection and help as is possible to the Czechoslovaks against the armed Austrian and German prisoners who are attacking them and to steady any efforts at self-government or self-defense in which the Russians themselves may be willing to accept assistance."

Professor T. G. Masaryk, Chief of the Czechoslovak National Council, the governing body of the Czechoslovak movement, whose headquarters are in Washington, recently sent a message to M. Pinchon, the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, in which he said:

"Recognition of the independent Czechoslovak State means the dismemberment of Austria-Hungary, reducing Germany to her own national forces. The independent Czechoslovak State is the final check to Pan German schemes of a Berlin-to-Bagdad route. The anti-German barrier formed by the Czechoslovak State, Poland, Jugoslavia, Rumania, and Italy is also the surest help to Russia and the small nations now under Austro-German domination. Russia, separated from the Germans and the Magyars, can develop without direct German interference."

GERMANS MASS FOR MARCH TO PETROGRAD

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The Germans intend to occupy Petrograd, a dispatch to the Copenhagen Poletiken from Helsingfors declares, the Exchange Telegraph correspondent in the Danish capital reports. Troops for this purpose are already being brought toward the objective, it is added.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13.—Because of the counter-revolutionary movement in Russia the "Second Soviet Congress" has placed the execution of power in the hands of a triumvirate composed of Premier Nikolai Lenine, Leon Trotzky, Minister of War, and M. Zinovieff, an associate of Lenine, according to Mos-

Finns Elect King Next Month; Two Germans as Candidates

LONDON, Aug. 13.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from The Hague says the Frankfurter Zeitung's Stockholm correspondent announces that the election of a King of Finland has been fixed for September, and that it is probable either the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg or Prince William of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen will be chosen.

The newspaper's announcement of the coming election probably means that the Landtag's Constitutional Committee has reported favorably on the petition asking the Government to proceed to the election of a King under the law of 1772, which, it has been contended, is still valid. This law provides for the election of a King by the majority vote of the Landtag.

There has been considerable opposition to this method on the ground that it would be regarded by France and other nations as illegal and impossible of recognition, but, assisted by strong German influence, the monarchist sentiment is said to have grown very rapidly.

SPANISH INFLUENZA HERE, SHIP MEN SAY

10 OTHER PASSENGERS ILL

Brooklyn Doctor Who Is Treating Them Says They Are Suffering with Pneumonia.

A disease, which the officers of a Norwegian steamship which arrived here yesterday insisted was the Spanish influenza, caused the death of four persons on the voyage. When the vessel reached this port yesterday ten men and women severely ill and exhibiting all the symptoms of the disease which caused the death of the other four were taken ashore for treatment. One of these patients, Mrs. Jensine Olsen, who lived in Flint, Mich., and was on her way to join her husband, died in the Norwegian Hospital soon after she reached that institution.

Whether the disease was the true Spanish influenza was not officially determined yesterday, but Dr. Edward G. Cornwell of 1,218 Jackson Avenue, Brooklyn, who treated the patients from the ship, said yesterday that the immediate cause of Mrs. Olsen's death was bronchial pneumonia. As far as he could determine, he added, no symptoms of Spanish influenza had been evident in any of the cases, and he was treating them on a diagnosis of pneumonia.

At the hospital it was learned that the patients had not been isolated, and, it was asserted, they would not have passed Quarantine had they been suffering from true Spanish influenza. One of them is Arvid Sundstrom, 17 years old, whose father makes his home at the Hotel Lorraine.

200 Passengers Ill at One Time.

Late last night it was said that all the cases with one exception were diagnosed as pneumonia and that the exception was a child afflicted with bronchial pneumonia. It was also said, however, that some of the passengers on board asserted that during the voyage 200 passengers had been sick at one time, the illness lasting several days.

When asked whether the illness might not have been seasickness the passengers said that the illness was accompanied by high fever. One of the patients in the Norwegian Hospital, an educated woman with two children, told the hospital physician she was sure that the illness was not seasickness. Her children, she said, were taken with it and they both had high fever. The physician in charge at the hospital said that evidently there had been some kind of an epidemic on board, but he was unable to tell the exact nature of it because he did not have the history of the patients.

The officers of the ship said yesterday that the disease was brought on board at Bergen by a woman passenger in the third class, who came from Finland. After the first victim died four days out from the port one of the crew, an assistant cook, who looked after the third class passengers, contracted the disease and also died, and was buried at sea. The Spanish influenza, which was said to have really started among the Russian armies on the eastern frontier in the Winter of 1915, commenced with pains followed by fever and delirium generally lasting four days, and left the patients so weak that it took two weeks or more to recover.

The victims of the disease on the Norwegian steamship, it was asserted, had pneumonia after the fever, which was the cause of death in 33 per cent.

Another Steamer Sunk Off the Jersey Coast

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The steamship Henry S. Kellogg has been torpedoed by a German submarine off the New Jersey coast, according to a report received late tonight by the Navy Department. The statement says:

The steamship Henry S. Kellogg, reported at 8 o'clock tonight that she had been torpedoed off the New Jersey coast. Whether any of her crew were killed, injured, or lost, or the extent of the injury done, is not known at this late hour.

Available shipping records do not contain the name of the Henry S. Kellogg. A new American tanker, the Frederick R. Kellogg, 4,450 tons, is owned by the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company of Los Angeles.

A ship's lifeboat, with thirty-one castaway seamen in it and towed by a patrol boat to the United States Coast Guard steps at the United States Barge Office, brought the news to this city yesterday morning that the Norwegian freighter Sommerstad had been torpedoed about twenty-five miles southeast by east of Fire Island on Monday morning. The navy patrol boat had picked up the survivors late that night after they had rowed toward the land for eleven hours. After making his report to the Norwegian Consul General, at 17 State Street, Captain Hansen told of the destruction of his ship.

"We were bound from Norway to New York in ballast, under charter to the United States Government, and had called at Halifax for examination by the British officials. The Sommerstad was steaming along the Long Island coast about eleven knots at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, when the lookout man forward reported that he saw the wake of a torpedo coming toward the ship from starboard. The torpedo missed the bow by a narrow margin, and sped on for several yards, and then made a half circle and returned toward our ship, which it struck on the port side amidships, exploding with terrific violence. Several of the watch on deck were knocked down by the force of the explosion, and the cook was blown clean out of the galley.

"I saw the Sommerstad would not be afloat long and ordered the crew to lower the two boats. The torpedo traveled toward the ship at a speed of forty miles an hour, and from the time it was sighted until it struck the side there was no chance to avert disaster by altering the course. The torpedo had evidently been intended to hit the Sommerstad on the starboard side, but something was the matter with the gyroscope.

"We saw no sign of a periscope or a U-boat and nothing disturbed the surface of the sea after we got into the boats. I have no doubt that the German commander was satisfied that our steamship would sink or else he would have fired a few shells into her. Wireless messages had been picked up by the operator on Sunday warning shipmasters that U-boats were active off the American coast but as they had been reported more than 200 miles away from Sandy Hook I did not expect to see any Hun close to Fire Island.

"The Sommerstad rilled so quickly after the torpedo struck her that in four minutes she had settled so deeply that her funnel was awash. The steamship began to sink by the stern and as we got the boats clear her bow was pointing skywards. There was a slight fog hanging over the water which was calm and scarcely any breeze. We made towards the Long Island shore and rowed all day.

"Toward suncown we heard Fire Island's siren, and made directly for the shore. Soon afterward we were sighted by the naval patrol vessel which brought us to this city. The men were tired with rowing all day, and were taken care of for the night on the patrol

442 Lost from French Ship Sunk in Mediterranean

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Four hundred and forty-two men are missing as a result of the torpedoing of the French steamer Djemnah in the Mediterranean the night of July 14-15, while bound from Bizerta to Alexandria with troops on board, according to an official announcement tonight.

Four days later the French steamer Australian also was torpedoed in the Mediterranean. Still another steamer was torpedoed, but remained afloat.

The communication reads:

"The steamer Djemnah, belonging to the Messageries Maritimes, proceeding from Bizerta to Alexandria with military passengers, was torpedoed and sunk the night of July 14-15. Four hundred and forty-two men are missing.

"On July 19 the Mediterranean steamer Australian, belonging to the same company, was torpedoed and sunk. Seventeen sailors were killed. Passengers to the number of 948 were saved. Three are missing."

SHARP FIGHTING ON VESLE FRONT

Americans in a Six-Hour Battle Repulse the Foe and Hold Their Ground.

FORCED ONCE TO RETIRE

Both Sides Launch Attacks Simultaneously and the Germans Get Into Our Lines.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 13.—With the evident desire to maintain their front along the Vesle, perhaps more for propaganda purposes than strategical reasons, the Germans yesterday launched two violent attacks against the Americans north of Fismes. One of these attacks met an attack which was being made by the Americans and bloody fighting followed. The net results of six hours of fighting leave the line just where it was before. One hundred and ninety-two dead Germans were counted in a small region where temporarily they forced their way into our front line.

We launched an attack of a local nature just before dawn. Our force had moved forward about a kilometer when at 5 o'clock they met a German attack in force which, as the artillery work gave evidence, had been prepared before. The two forces met, and before superior numbers we retired to where we started from. The Germans kept up their artillery work on a large scale until 10 o'clock, when they launched an attack of a violent nature against the line between the Bois du Diable and Fismette, using much gas and flame projectors. The Americans had got up reinforcements. The German onset carried them a few hundred yards inside our line, but they were repulsed with considerable losses and we maintained our lines intact.

The Germans had been ordered to retake Fismes, orders which of course were not carried out. Some of their snipers, under cover of darkness, got across the Vesle into the outskirts of the town, but they were exterminated by our men.

The enemy kept up a harassing artillery fire all day, which continued last night. Considerable gas was sent over.

German aerial activity continues marked. With an apparently limitless supply of planes they for the time have air superiority over the Americans on the Vesle front.

Previous Attacks Weak.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE VESLE, Aug. 12, (Associated Press.)—The Germans directed counteractions against the Franco-American line between Soissons and Rheims today, but without bringing about any change in the situation. Nor did the enemy reveal any intention of an immediate attempt to recover any portion of the territory lost north of the Marne. At no point was a hard blow

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Aug. 13.—"The situation is extremely satisfactory," said a high French officer to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today. "Although the advance is less rapid, that does not mean that the allied pressure is relaxing."

There are several features which warrant high hopes for the future. Perhaps the most important is the unexampled depression in the enemy ranks caused by the dramatic change from success to disaster.

For the first time since the war began German officers say freely: "We can't win now," or "The German game is up," or "The best thing we can do is to make peace as soon as possible."

Here and there one is found who cherishes the dream that Hindenburg may yet rescue the situation by a stroke of genius, but the tone in which the suggestion is proffered shows that it is hope against hope, like a condemned man praying for an impossible reprieve.

Foe Short of Material.

Secondly, the Germans are suffering terribly, not only from appalling losses in men, but the vast quantities of guns and material abandoned in the last month. The "life" of their cannon is already greatly shortened by the shortage of certain elements, such as manganese, in the composition of steel. The allied capture of not far short of 1,200 pieces since the whole counteroffensive began must increase this difficulty enormously.

Doubtless munitions, machine guns, and artillery can be replaced, and to a less extent men also, but the need to do so multiplies tenfold what perhaps is the most serious German embarrassment at the present juncture. I mean the question of transport. The Germans are already faced by a shortage of rolling stock, horses, and grease for trucks and wagons, and hampered by the impaired quality of their railroad beds and material.

The enemy is now compelled to put an entirely disproportionate burden on his communication services, long ago strained to the utmost. Even far behind the front the problem is a very grave one, but as the firing line is approached it is veritably agonizing.

Even in favorable conditions "tie-ups" are inevitable when any extensive transport operation is in progress. Allied airmen are ever on the watch, and the moment a tie-up occurs it is signalld to the airdrome and bombing squadrons assail the point immediately. No discipline can face a mass attack from the air and the resultant confusion often ablocks important junctions of railroads or highways for several hours.

It is essential, unless the morale of an army is to crack completely, that the wounded be evacuated from the danger zone without delay. Nothing depresses soldiers so much as the sight of injured comrades uncared for or in pitiable circumstances, for each man thinks that may be his fate before long. Im-

Austrian Troops Are Sent to the West Front; Emperor Charles to Confer With Kaiser Today.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Germany has been compelled to call upon Austria-Hungary for help on the western front, and Austro-Hungarian troops are arriving there, the Echo de Paris says today. These troops, it adds, are being sent to quiet sectors of the front.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—An Austrian division which Emperor Charles sent hurriedly westward to help out his hard-pressed German ally has not yet appeared in the line. It is at present, in fact, encamped in Belgium, and is reported as showing no anxiety to get into the raging furnace to the southwest.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13.—Emperor Charles of Austria, Baron Burian, Austrian Foreign Minister, Prince von Hohenlohe, Austrian Ambassador at Berlin, and Count von Wedel, German Ambassador at Vienna, are expected at German Main Headquarters tomorrow to discuss all pending questions, according to Berlin advices to the Frankfurter Zeitung.

The advices add that M. Joffe, Russian Ambassador to Germany, has left Berlin for Moscow to obtain the ratification of a treaty, supplementing the Brest-Litovsk treaty, which had been initiated Aug. 10.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 13.—While the German imperial propagandists are spreading lies alleging mistreatment of captured German wounded by the Americans, I got some first-hand information today about how the Germans treat American wounded.

My information comes from Corporal M. P. Purvis of the British Army, who was captured at Craonne on May 27, and who, escaping, entered the American lines near Fismes yesterday. The prison camp in which he was held is at Ramecourt, thirty-five kilometers northwest of Fismes and near the main railroad which ran from the German Soissons-Rheims salient. The work he did took Purvis onto this railroad. He said he saw American wounded men on flatcars. They told Purvis they had been wounded seven days before. Purvis said [150 words deleted here.]

The Germans were very short of medical supplies and all they had were used for their own soldiers. There were no anaesthetics for the wounded prisoners. They have almost no cloth bandages, but paper ones are used instead, even for their own wounded.

All Captives Cruelly Treated.

Unwounded American prisoners also are treated terribly, as are the English. Around the prison camp he had seen a number of signs, "Gott strafe England." After the Americans helped to drive back the Germans from the Marne some of these were changed to "Gott strafe America."

Corporal Purvis was a bank clerk before the war and is an intelligent man. I believe the utmost reliance can be placed in his story. All he said was corroborated by Private Isaac White of the British Army, who escaped with Purvis.

Purvis also revealed that while Germans who were captured by the Russians are fighting for Germany in Russia, the Russians who were captured by the Germans were kept in prison camps and used as laborers by the German Army. Purvis said that the elaborate railroad system built by the Germans in the Soissons-Rheims salient was constructed by 2,000 Russians and by a number of English prisoners of war. He said the English also were used to

TROOPS REBELLED IN MARNE RETREAT

German Soldiers, Deeply Depressed, Had to be Dealt With Severely.

OUTBREAKS WERE SERIOUS

High Command Forced to be Frank on Somme Result to Help Army Morale.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13. — There cannot be the slightest doubt that the depressed feeling at home in Germany has had serious results in the army.

However exaggerated the home reports may be which are current here, I have the best grounds for believing that serious disturbances among the troops, retreating from the Marne, had to be dealt with. Dealt with they were in the sternest possible fashion and it was those disorders, (mutinies is not too strong a word,) which caused the German command to adopt a fairly frank attitude regarding the failure of the defensive in the Somme region.

To improve the shaken morale of the troops, (Bavarians chiefly are in question,) opinion at home has to be altered and that is the way the German authorities are setting about the task.

Karl Rosner, correspondent of the Lokal-Anzeiger, admits that the Entente success appears to have been even greater than the Entente command expected.

The tanks appear to have greatly surprised the Germans. The Vossische Zeitung describes how they were brought up quite close to the German positions without their presence being revealed. The fog concealed them from sight, while the noise of artillery at work prevented even the keenest ear from hearing the approach of the Entente's war chariots. Without a warning, on came the tanks against the German positions.

The fog and the short distance they had to go in order to get in among the Germans, the writer says, brought it about that the only really effective defense against them, when in large numbers, the field artillery, was practically out of action.

In the fighting on Saturday the Germans lost one of their best airmen, Lieutenant Loewenhardt, who is said to have brought down fifty-three opponents.

FOE BATTLES FURIOUSLY

But Is Unable to Hold Humbert's Army, Aiming at Lassigny.

GIVING UP OISE TERRITORY

High Ground Practically All Won by French Troops in a New Thrust.

BRITISH REPULSE ATTACKS

Haig Announces 28,000 Men and 600 Guns Taken by Armies Above Montdidier.

70,000 Germans, 1,000 Guns Taken in Advance, Paris Hears

PARIS, Aug. 13, (Havas Agency.)—Since the beginning of the allied counteroffensive on July 18 the Allies have taken more than 70,000 prisoners and more than 1,000 guns, the Echo de Paris states today.

In addition, it estimates, more than 10,000 machine guns have been captured from the enemy.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Resuming the offensive today between the Matz and the Oise Rivers, the French Army under General Humbert again drove forward into the enemy lines.

Progress was made both east and north of Gury, thereby increasing the menace to Lassigny, two miles to the northeast.

The entire massif of Lassigny, possession of which threatens the German occupation of the Lassigny-Ribecourt line, is reported to be in French hands. A heavy German counterattack on the massif has been repulsed.

Further to the east the French troops have gained in the hilly wooded region.

The village of l'Econvillon has been captured, and further ground has been gained north of St. Claude Farm. [L'Econvillon is about three and a half miles southeast of Lassigny and virtually on the crest of the ridge, overlooking the Oise.]

The French have also advanced two kilometers north of Cambronne [west of Ribecourt,] and as the result of French pressure further eastward in the valley of the Oise the Germans are evacuating their trenches in the bend of the river west of Bailly and the French are occupying them.

As the result of the continuous pressure exerted by General Humbert the fall of Lassigny is imminent, and may already have occurred.

When the French get their guns to the top of the hills in this region the enemy's communications with Roye will come under observed fire.

In the opinion of experts here the evacuation of Roye may be expected within a day or two, for the town is already under a crossfire. Abandonment of Roye by the Germans would also make Chaulnes difficult to hold.

Thus recent history on the Marne is counted upon to repeat itself on this new front. If the German line does not fall back, just as it did on the Marne, with the expected fall of Roye and Chaulnes, it could hold only under conditions of greatest difficulty.

The Allied artillery now has full control of converging roads in and out of Noyon, near the southern end of the line, notably that running northward toward Ham. The difficulty of the enemy in carrying out a retrograde movement is thus markedly increased.

Operations on the British front today were of a comparatively minor character. Heavy assaults by the Germans to stop the Allied forces were made, but without result.

The enemy is reported destroying villages in his rear. The ruins of Peronne are reported to be burning. Fires have been observed by Allied airmen at various points.

So far thirty-three German divisions have been identified in the fighting. The enemy's reserves, the indications are, are gradually being exhausted and he is drawing troops out of the line to extend his flanks and cover any gaps. This is an operation, however, which can only be carried out to a limited degree.

Since the allied offensive began on Aug. 8 the total captures by the French First Army and the British Fourth Army have aggregated 28,000 men and 600 guns, says Field Marshal Haig's communication from headquarters tonight.

The communication adds that today passed in comparative quiet on the battlefront.

Official Accounts of Operations.

The night report of the French War Office reads:

During the day our troops resumed their attacks in the wooded region between the Matz and the Oise.

In spite of strong enemy resistance, we succeeded in making progress to the north and east of Gury. We have gained a footing in the park of Plessier de Roye and reached Belval.

Further east we have advanced our lines about two kilometers to the north of the village of Cambronne.

The day report from Paris was as follows:

There were no events of importance reported during the course of the night on the battlefront.

Several enemy raids in the Vosges and Upper Alsace were without result.

General Haig's official communication tonight says:

On the battlefront, except for somewhat increased hostile artillery activity, the day has passed comparatively quietly. We have captured a few prisoners at different points.

On the remainder of the British front some raiding and patrol activity is reported south of the Scarpe, northeast of Robecq, and in the neighborhood of Vieux-Berquin.

The number of prisoners captured by the French First Army and the British Fourth Army since the morning of the 8th inst. exceeds 28,000. Among them are 800 officers, including eight regimental commanders.

In the same period these armies have taken about 600 German guns, including many guns of heavy calibre, and also several thousand machine guns, and also numerous trench mortars which have not yet been counted.

The material captured includes three complete trains and vast stocks of engineering and other stores.

The day report of the British War Office was as follows:

On the battlefront our troops effected further improvements in their positions north of the Roye road and on the north bank of the Somme, and captured additional prisoners.

A local attack made by the enemy in the neighborhood of Fouquescourt was repulsed.

We captured a few prisoners last night in patrol encounters south of the Scarpe (Arras front) and in the neighborhood of Vieux-Berquin, (Flanders.) A hostile attack against our positions in the Merris sector was repulsed, after sharp fighting.

Germans Fight on 1914 Line.

FRENCH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Aug. 13, (Reuter.)—In the French sector the dominant factor is the desperate energy with which the enemy is clinging to the western and southern edges of Thiescourt and the hills filling the space between Lassigny and the Oise, which constitute the pillar of General von Hutier's right wing.

On these edges the French hold Gury, Marcuil, La Motte, and Canny-Sur-Matz. A short distance north of Canny is the Bois des Lodges. Along this line the enemy has established himself in his 1914 trenches and is fighting his hardest.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 13, (Associated Press.)—There was sharp fighting yesterday on the heights of Thiescourt, particularly in Loges Wood, which was captured at noon, after it had been drenched with gas. In the afternoon the Germans counterattacked and reoccupied the woods.

On the left of the position the Germans reacted violently, holding the French at bay, but from Gury eastward the French progressed. The German first line was thinly manned but with heavily armed machine guns, which more than ever constitute their reliance to stem the troops of General Humbert.

The French today were fighting in the communication trenches and among the barbed-wire entanglements of their old line, with rifle, grenade, and bayonet. A division fighting at Belval took 177 prisoners. The Germans said they were ordered yesterday to hold out at any cost and that the French artillery was causing them great loss.

The task of the French in this region is difficult, as the Germans know the ground thoroughly, have all the ranges and have brought up heavy guns to replace their enormous losses in field artillery.

The German stand there is vital. If this key to Noyon falls, the enemy's retreat would become difficult.

Reports from aviators state that the disorder on all the roads leading to the rear of the German front is indescribable. Every crossroad is an admirable target for the airmen.

Aviators, after serving to replace heavy artillery by bombing front areas, are now aiding the infantry and cavalry. When these forces are topped at machine-gun nests, airmen, flying low, drive the gunners from their posts. Then the infantry or cavalry rush in and capture the guns before the enemy can resume fire.

Lassigny Loss Serious to Foe.

LONDON, Aug. 13, (Associated Press.)—The French capture of the entire massif of Lassigny, reported in advices this afternoon, gives command of the town of Lassigny and the valley of the Divette, as well as the entire district to the north.

The French capture of the massif must have the most serious effect on the German positions over a wide area, and this should begin to show within forty-eight hours. The massif was the hinge of the old German positions in the angle in the Noyon region, and now that this hinge has burst the entire angle must yield to allied pressure.

The French gains here have already forced the Germans to evacuate a long line of trenches in the valley of the Oise and are calculated to force further evacuations almost immediately.

Noyon will come under the fire of the French guns as soon as the artillery can be moved up. Then the road transports on the network of highways around Noyon will become a difficult problem for the Germans.

SHARP FIGHTING ON THE VESLE FRONT

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

delivered. The guns on either side were seldom silent, and at many places, especially in the neighborhood of Fismette, north of Fismes, where the opposing lines are close, the Germans repeatedly searched the American positions with machine gun fire.

It is possible that the Crown Prince may decide upon a counterattack on a big scale in that sector, but such action would necessitate the bringing up of divisions which presumably are badly needed on the British front and at other points. It seems probable he realizes that any attempt to wrest territory here from the troops that have just taken it would be extremely costly.

On the other hand, the Germans are now in such positions along the line south of the Aisne that they can afford to take more time for a retreat over that river, confident that the Allies will not extend themselves too much in an effort here at this time. The Germans are fighting hard for time, but observers continue to report indications that their plans still include a retirement. The French and the Americans, however, have not ceased to exert pressure and are taking full advantage of the opportunity to bring up supplies and replacements. The Americans who will continue the advance or will meet the German if he chooses to attack will thus be fresh and no less ready for the combat than the troops which assisted in pushing the enemy across the Marne and the Vesle.

Our Guns Cover the Aisne.

For the moment, however, the lines here are nearly stabilized, and it may be some days before there is activity aside from the artillery duel now in progress, supplemented by a series of patrol encounters. The heavy guns of the Germans are reaching the distant rear areas of the Allies, but the French and American batteries of heavies have every curve in the Aisne along this front within their range. The roads in every part of the restricted area between the Vesle and the Aisne are likewise subjected to artillery fire.

Until the Germans complete their withdrawal or in turn drive the Allies some distance south of the Vesle their position is tenable only with difficulty.

harvest the wheat back of the German lines.

I asked Purvis to tell me exactly what the Germans fed him. He said that at 4 o'clock in the morning, when they started to work, they received one pint of "coffee" made from hawthorn berries; at 2 o'clock they got one pint of soup made from dried vegetables, and at 6 o'clock "coffee" again. Each day they received three-fourths of a pound of black bread, which smelled like swill and felt like rubber.

"The boche is in a terrible predicament," he said. "They use substitutes for all foods and for everything, except three things — men, guns, and ammunition. Thank God, they can't get a substitute for those!"

Worried by Americans.

Purvis said that the morale of most of the German troops was deteriorating. He also said that the success of the Americans was worrying them.

Purvis and his partner had an exciting time escaping. On Aug. 7, when they started out to work, it was not yet light. He and White slipped into some bushes and hid in a dugout all day. That night they walked toward the south. They kept this up until yesterday morning, when they got in front of the American lines.

Dressed in dirty German prison garb, they looked in the early morning light like German infantrymen. An American doughboy rushed at Purvis with a bayonet. Purvis grasped the rifle and got it away from the American, who leaped upon him with his fists. With White looking on, they rolled about in the mud until their profanity caused each to recognize that the other was not a German, for Purvis thought that after his seven days' flight he had run into a German patrol, while the doughboy thought he was trying to repel a German attack. When they recognized one another the American escorted the two Tommies back to his mess and fed them.

Wants to Guard Germans.

When I saw Purvis today he was bending over a tub of water, and two doughboys were scrubbing the dirtiest back I ever saw. It was the first time he had seen a piece of soap since the day he was captured, when the Germans started the drive which took them to the Marne. When I saw Purvis and White later they were dressed in American uniforms.

"Where to now?" I asked.

"Lad," said Purvis, "I'm going back to blighty to ask King George to give me a job to guard one of our Jerry camps. That's all I ask in life. Give me that job for one week, and I can die happy."

agine the task of removing 10,000 wounded along a choked transportation system.

Foe Resisting Desperately.

Meanwhile, new forces of resistance must be grouped in the rear to meet the unremitting pressure on the battlefront. That sums up the tactical position at this moment.

The enemy is clinging desperately to ground with every available man, gun and machine gun to give himself time to offer more solid resistance later, probably further back.

The Allies in return are occupied in reducing the front line positions as rapidly and inexpensively as possible. The battle for Thiescourt Wood massif, called Little Switzerland, which is now in progress, is a most salient example. This massif defends the Roye and Lassigny line in the centre.

The first move of the French was to advance along the Matz Valley, north of the massif, to Canny-sur-Matz, which is dominated by the Loges Wood. Here the Germans launched a furious counterattack yesterday afternoon, accompanied by a very heavy bombardment, in which gas predominated. The French managed to retain their hold on the greater part of the wood, but further progress was slowed up for the time being by the enemy's superiority in numbers and weight of artillery.

Further south the French took Gury and held it against strong attacks. Its occupation gave a flank protection for the next move, an attack on the Saint Claude Farm, on the edge of the western crest of the massif, to which it is the key.

French Gain by Manoeuvres.

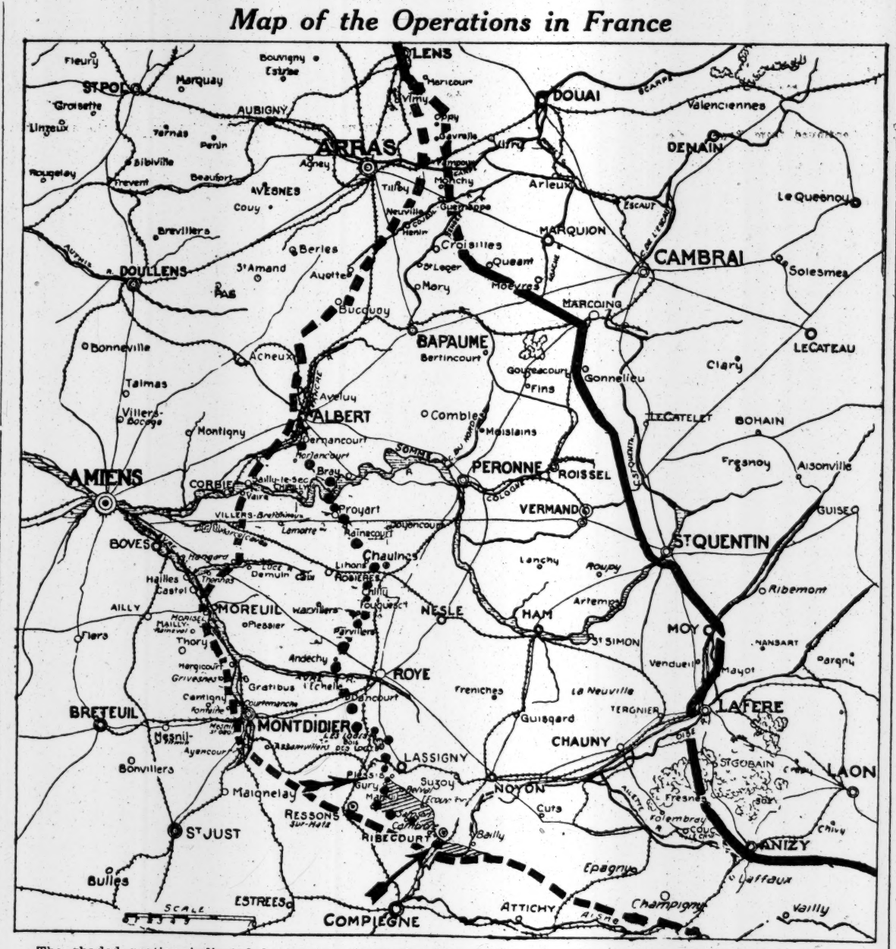

The struggle was bound to be hard, as the slopes to the northward were broken into ravines, notably that of Belval, where the enemy concentrations could form in shelter. Our attacking divisions took advantage of similar broken ground to the southward to approach its objectives by a series of manoeuvres.

The first detachments moving up the narrow valleys that run northwards from Matz captured the heights of Vignemont by an encirclement, took Margny and Plessier by assault, and encircled Hill 179, dominating Bellinglise, which fell soon afterwards. The troops then moved on along the Mareuil Sur Motte Ravine under fire form machine guns on the Saint Claude Hill.

Simultaneously a frontal attack was launched up the slopes on the line of Gury and the Saint Claude Farm. The enemy machine guns, subjected to a regular barrage of rifle grenades, minewerfer and the fire of the French machine guns from the flank could not resist the charge of the infantry and the key position passed into French hands. Almost at the same moment an attack on the right of the Massif gave the French Ecuvillon, thus gripping the whole position in the horns of pinhcers.

The enemy is now trying desperately to prevent the pincers from closing, but for the assailants the most difficult part of the job is past, and the German efforts will be in vain.

Map of the Operations in France

The shaded portion indicated by arrows shows the gain made by the Allies in yesterday's fighting. The front established by Monday's operations is shown by a line of circular dots; that which existed at the beginning of the allied drive by a heavy broken line, and the old front, before the German offensive, by a heavy black line.

GERMANS TRY VAINLY TO BEAT BACK BRITISH

Foe Counterattacks and Rushes Up Troops in an Effort to Check Allied Advance.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 13, (Associated Press.)—Ground gained by the Allied armies in the second battle of the Somme has been held by them everywhere today. The harassed and disorganized forces of the enemy have launched several counterattacks, but none of them has carried the Germans anywhere.

As a matter of fact, a small but nevertheless important local gain made by the Allies just north of the Somme River, to say nothing of other successful minor operations for improving positions, more than trebly outweighs the extremely slight gains made by the Germans at a heavy cost at two points in the line.

In the meantime the enemy appears to be moving in a considerable number of troops. Heavy movements westward are reported by aerial observers, but no really great force remains available for Crown Prince Rupprecht to throw into the battle without calling on the German Crown Prince for assistance.

Proyart remains firmly in the hands of the British, having been finally taken by them yesterday.

North of the Somme the Americans spent a quiet night, the principal action in that locality being at the southern end of their position on the spur between Etinehem and Bray. There the British improved their positions along the whole length of the spur by storming and capturing enemy defenses, inflicting casualties and taking prisoners.

There has been some little fighting in Madame Wood, about 2,000 yards southeast of Herleville, where the Australians are in touch with the enemy. A German counterattack yesterday at Chilly, further south, resulted in the British withdrawing to the edge of the town, as nothing could be gained by staying there. Chilly is now in No Man's Land. Another counterattack east of Lihons, north of Chilly, was smothered under British fire.

Among the new troops which the enemy has hurled into the line in front of the British are two units from the north and one from Flanders. All told, more than thirty German divisions have so far been engaged by the Allied forces in this battle. Of this number twenty-four have been in action against the British alone. At least five of the enemy divisions are exhausted, and either have been or soon will be, removed from the line.

The enemy launched a counterattack east of Fouquescourt last night, but he was driven off with casualties, the British positions remaining intact.

Enemy reinforcements are now reported concentrating east of Roye, but they are being badly mauled by bombs and shells from both the British and the French.

Strong enemy concentrations have also been reported between Roye and Fouquescourt, but so far they have done nothing, if really they are there for an offensive purpose.

In the northern battle area, especially in the Bray region, new enemy defensive barbed wire has been found, while earthworks are being constructed at several places behind the German line. Probably the enemy has removed much of his material and has sent in nearly all the reinforcements he cares to risk at the present time.

Morlancourt is being heavily shelled, while the enemy, with aerial bombs, has apparently attempted to blow up the ammunition dumps he left in his hurry to get away. British and French guns have been busy today pounding German rear areas and the crossings over the Somme.

Enemy shells that are coming in are being fired at extreme range, probably from well on the other side of the Somme. This is especially true of shells aimed at the districts south of the Amiens-Nesle road.

Between the Ancre and the Somme the operations of the British, which resulted in a small material advance and the capture of enemy positions, provoked only a scattered shelling from field guns.

British airplanes continued to drop tons of shells on the enemy, especially in the neighborhood of Péronne. Enemy transports are also suffering from the British bombers, one of whom secured a direct hit on a transport train on the Ham-Nesle road. It is now established that a giant Gotha, with five engines, which was brought down a few nights ago near Talmas, carried a crew of nine, all of whom were killed.

FIERCE STRUGGLE OVER ROYE ROAD

VILLAGES TAKEN AND LOST

Allies Gradually Improve Their Positions In Spite of a Stiffer Resistance.

By HENRY W. NEVINSON.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES, Aug. 12.—Starting at first light this morning I again made a long journey through Amiens, down the straight road that leads to Roye, though one still has to stop some miles short of the town because the enemy holds the ridge and the wood commanding it.

It appears to me that for distinction the recent push of four days should be called the Battle of Roye Road, for although the southern boundary of the Fourth Army's action had been in the neighborhood of that road, yet the co-operation of the French beyond and as far as Montdidier makes the road a kind of central radius to the great arc from Dernancourt, on the Ancre, southward.

This morning the road was quieter, and for the last few miles, from about Quesnel onward, it was almost ominously deserted. The solitude warned one that the enemy's resistance was hardening and that his artillery or machine guns commanded the main approach. This warning was soon justified.

A series of overgrown trenches crosses the road, marking the old allied lines after the battle of the Somme. Standing this morning in old No Man's Land some distance in front of last year's trenches and about four miles from Rovet, one could understand the situation fairly well. Close at hand upon the left, or north of the road, where some small woods that conceal the villages of Parvillers and Damery; and that the enemy still occupied both was evident from an occasional sputter of machine-gun fire in our direction.

Barrage Stops Foe Attack.

Yesterday he attempted to counterattack from Parvillers toward Le Quesnoy, which lies barely a mile west of it, but, as a soldier coming out from the line remarked to me, "He wasn't no good against our barrage."

On the part of the British last night a small body of troops holding this sector of our front line attacked the Wood of Amery, just south of Parvillers, and were aided by new tanks. The tanks were, however, partly checked by direct shell-fire and the infantry were unable to advance against the rain of machine-gun fire and bombs.

North of Parvillers the British hold Fouquescourt, Chilly, and Lihons, the two last-named villages having been retaken yesterday by the Australians after the enemy had once reoccupied them by a strong counterattack.

Thence our line now swings back slightly past Rainecourt and Poyart to a point near Mericourt, nearly opposite the Chipilly loop on the Somme.

South of the Roye road I could hear heavy firing at intervals, and the French who hold that sector were evidently meeting with strong resistance. I hear they have taken Andechy, a mile from the road, and this morning were reported east of L'Echelle, another mile south of Andechy, so that their line fairly conforms with the British.

It remains to speak of the road itself as it rose before me on the way to Roye. The rise is slight, for the whole of this region is almost a level plain, but it is sufficient to conceal the town of Roye from sight and obviously commands the approach to the place, which is in a shallow valley not far from the source of the Avre.

Fierce Fight at Z Wood.

On the left and on the road at the top of this gradual rise stands a wood known to the French as Z Wood, from its shape. Soldiers who were here after the great German retreat last year tell me the wood is full of pits and quarries and tunnels capable of concealing more than a brigade.

It is strongly intrenched and fortified, being further protected by two strong redoubts or pill-boxes armed with machine guns.

This wood and its redoubts were instruments of destruction which checked the cavalry I saw advancing so gallantly to attack the gentle slope last Saturday afternoon, apparently in the hope of cutting their way through Roye.

They met with barbed wire, machine guns, and shells along the low crest of the ridge on both sides of the road. They charged up the open road itself, and the wood and redoubts poured their fire upon them as they rode. Looking straight up the hill road, I saw the horses and their riders.

On each side of the road where I stood there were, some of them today—those men and horses who were going up so steadily and so gallantly only two days ago. It has been a most gallant episode, and Z Wood is likely to win a name in cavalry history.

A Sergeant, who was near, tells me the road was blown up by a gkround mine as they passed over. I saw no evidence of that, but I hope to get further details from some of those who rode in the charge.

I understand that last night the French attacked the wood with a small force of infantry until the enemy was squeezed, or shelled, or gassed out of it. Roye will not be under observation from this side. The bridges over the Somme at Epenancourt, Pargny, and Betheancourt, now under the fire of 6-inch guns, stationed at the important junction of Chaulnes, have been under fire since "zero day," last Thursday, and may be now assumed to be utterly destroyed.

On the other hand the German resistance is certainly increasing along the whole British front in this direction, as was naturally to be expected. Hitherto he has been forced to resist the advance chiefly with machine guns because the British captured so much of his artillery, but he now is bringing fresh batteries up to the line.

Australians Take Proyart.

I may add a few details about other parts of the wide front which I have not been able to visit myself today, for that would be impossible when one has to return to telegraph over many miles of road in the afternoon.

I was north of Etinehem on Saturday night. This town corresponds to Chipilly, on the next great loop of the river, and is the key to Bray, where some British patrols are rumored to have been seen already. On Sunday night, at 10:30 o'clock, a body of Australians finally occupied Proyart, about two miles south of the Somme, crawling up to it on their stomachs, for they had been held up by machine guns in an attempt upon it the day before.

The conversation of prisoners taken on this front is said to show that both Prussians and Bavarians have declined in morale, and various cases of insubordination are mentioned. It must be remembered, however, that many prisoners like to say what will please their captors and perhaps excuse themselves for a too easy surrender.

I also heard much of the swarm of British airplanes, and their service cannot be overstated. Their chief losses have arisen from attacks by enemy planes from great heights upon our machines while the latter were flying low and firing upon British troops, bombing bridges or assaulting hostile aerodromes and even railway trains, into the very windows of which they sometimes fire; but, though such losses have been considerable, the British superiority over the enemy in numbers, skill, and daring is not disputed. As was seen in a recent officer's diary, even the Germans themselves are sarcastic about the difference between the British fliers and their own.

REPULSED FOE, SAYS BERLIN.

Official Report Admits No Successes by the Allies.

BERLIN, Aug. 13, (via London.)—The official report from headquarters today says:

South of Ypres early in the morning there was violent artillery fighting. Under our fire enemy attacks were unable to develop. South of Merris frequently repeated English partial attacks were repulsed. There was forefield fighting on both sides of La Bassé Canal and between the Scarpe and Ancre Rivers.

On the battlefield between the Ancre and the Avre the morning was quieter.

South of the Somme the enemy attacked in the afternoon on both sides of the Roman Road running from Foucancourt to Villers-Bretonneux. He was repulsed.

North of the Amiens-Roye Road we drove back strong enemy attacks in the evening. Between the Avre and the Oise there was violent fighting during the day with partially fresh brought up French divisions. Strong forces attacked in the morning south of the Avre, as well as between Tilloloy and north of Elincourt. They collapsed before our lines. At isolated points we repulsed them by counterthrusts.

Between Tilloloy and Canny and west and southwest of Lassigny the enemy continued his attacks until late in the evening.

South of Tilloloy on five occasions weak forces were thrust forward from the region of the Matz. We drove the enemy back and very frequently his attacks were held up by our concentrated artillery fire.

North and east of Fismes a local undertaking was successful. It resulted in prisoners being brought in.

Yesterday twenty-nine enemy airplanes were shot down.

AMERICAN RECORD OF VALOR GROWS

Reported That Marines, with All Their Casualties, Lost Under Ten as Prisoners.

WIN FRENCH ADMIRATION

Gen. De Goutte Proud of Americans In His Command—Brought New Elan to Allied Troops.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Every day brings a new batch of stories about the American troops, all bearing out the record of readiness, courage and general usefulness. Major Perkins of the Red Cross tells me he saw an American private in a Southampton hospital with this record, viz.: within one week he landed in France, fought in battle and was back in hospital with one leg gone.

Some American officers just back from an inspection trip on the Marne say the battlefield, particularly Belleau Wood, is still literally covered with wreckage. This wood was the scene of the most savage struggles between the Americans and the Germans. To all visitors General de Goutte expresses his deep satisfaction at having American troops under his command and is proud that the number is so great.

A German Colonel taken prisoner reported a tremendous increase in the number of head wounds in the German Army since the Americans came, for which rifle shooting by the doughboys is responsible. Many bodies have been found with the heads riddled by bullets.

It is said that with all the casualties of the marines, the whole brigade lost under ten men prisoners. This claim is worth verifying, for, if correct, it would certainly constitute a world record.

Our divisions in rest camps and on quiet sectors are reported eager to get back into the big game, and it is hard to hold them. Our organization for replacing losses is working admirably, and the new men settle down to business like veterans.

French and British Generals agree in crediting our men with bringing new elan — a quality most vital to success — to the European armies, who had so long held the field and upon whom the never-say-die spirit of our troops has had a tonic effect.

AIRPLANE SQUADRONS DO WORK OF GUNS

Bomb Planes Valuable When Heavy Artillery Cannot Follow the Foe Quickly Enough.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 13, (Associated Press.)—During the battles of the last few days, the aerial service, particularly bombarding squadrons, has been playing a most important rôle.

The bombing planes have virtually taken the place of the heavy artillery, which the Allies were not able to bring up fast enough to keep pace with their advance.

The work of these airplanes is so organized that they immediately attack groups of infantry, convoys and supply trains when they receive signals from reconnoitring planes. In this their work is very similar to that of the heavy artillery in its co-ordination with the aerial service.

Bombarding squadrons are kept ready for instant service at airdromes so that they may take the air immediately a call is received from signal planes, troops or convoys in villages or at road terminals.

This system was employed at Lassigny the other day. An observing plane reported the town incumbered with troops and supply trains. Airplanes to the number of 121 flew to the spot and twenty-one tons of bombs were dropped. This attack caused a large fire, destroyed motor lorries and blocked the streets of Lassigny, tying up the movement of the enemy for hours.

All cross roads, as well as railway junctions, where important lines of communication meet, are under continual attack from these bombing planes.

FRENCH PREPARE FOR NEW ATTACKS

Stabilizing Their Lines to Cope with the Large German Reinforcements.

FOE IS FIGHTING FOR TIME

Attempting to Organize a New and Strong Defensive Front in the Rear.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—The news arriving here from the battlefront continues scanty, and may be summed up in two words, stabilization and organization. The Germans have undoubtedly brought up large reinforcements, including, it is now stated, at least one Austrian division, and have by this means succeeded for the moment in re-establishing their defense line.

It is not believed to be possible, however, that they will be able to continue the fight very long on the present Noyon-Roye-Chaulnes front in view of the frightful manner in which their communications with the rear are constantly hampered by the French guns, and opinion here inclines strongly to the view that they will soon be compelled by the sheer untenability of the present positions to fall back at least to the line from Noyon through Ham and along the Somme to Péronne and Albert.

The stiff resistance which the Germans are putting up along the Noyon-Lassigny-Roye-Chaulnes front, it is believed here, is due more than anything else to their desperate need to gain time to reorganize their old lines further in the rear. At the same time, the enemy is no doubt hoping by stubborn resistance here to wear down the French reserves, and also to force the withdrawal of troops from other sectors where he may be meditating attack.

Germans Using More Guns.

It is noted here that the enemy is again employing large numbers of guns, which seems to indicate that he has once more changed his plans and decided to continue his resistance on the present battle front for a longer period than was thought possible yesterday.

One reason for this, however, may be that he has found it impossible, owing to the terrible destruction of his roads by artillery, to get his guns back over the Somme, and has decided to take a gambler's chance of being able to hold on where he is.

Whether he is able to do so depends largely on his ability to hold Lassigny and Roye. If these two vital points of the German defensive line fall, Noyon, according to opinion here, must follow. Mount Renaud, a very strong position, which commands the latter town and where the French held out for so long after the great German offensive March 21, is already threatened by Humbert's army, and will probably soon be in French hands again.

Taken altogether, Paris is confident that as soon as both sides have recovered their breath another allied advance in this sector may be expected.

General Humbert, who commands the Third French Army, which is threatening the Germans so seriously between Montdidier and Noyon, is one of the youngest but most experienced commanders. He is 56 and the son of a humble gendarme. A veritable child of the regiment, he came out at the head of the list from the great military school for officers at St. Cyr, and was in the first half dozen of his year when he left the Ecole de Guerre.

He served in Tonkin, Madagascar, and Morocco, and first became famous by his work in the first battle of the Marne, in 1914, when he came out victor in a terrible struggle for the Château de Mondemont, which resulted in thousands of the Prussian Guard being engulfed in the marshes of St. Gend.

Humbert was one of the heroes of Verdun, and has also commanded in the Argonne and on the Somme. He is one of the best of the French fighting Generals.

Holding North of the Vesle.

The position on the Vesle front remains puzzling. The German Crown Prince evidently intends to resist on his present positions, and is understood to have brought up a large force, whose orders are to hold out at all costs.

The German retreat on this sector has been brought to a stop. The enemy has organized his positions very strongly, and has taken every possible advantage of the natural features which the terrain affords. On his right, near Soissons, the enemy has the benefit of a very strong breastwork afforded by the confluence of the Vesle with the Aisne, and he also holds the south bank almost to Rheims.

The natural advantages of such a position are enormous, and will prove difficult to overcome.

BRITISH AIRMEN DOWN 37 ENEMY MACHINES

French Report Eleven Put Out of Action—Peronne and Cambrai Stations Bombed.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The following official communication dealing with aviation was issued this evening:

Work in the air was actively carried on in all its branches Aug. 12. On the battlefront our balloons were pushed forward close behind the line and sent down much useful information. Our artillery and reconnoissance machines were busily occupied all day.

Enemy airplanes were active and there was much air fighting. Thirty hostile machines were brought down and seven driven down out of control. One German balloon was shot down in flames.

Forty-five tons of bombs were dropped by us during the twenty-four hours, the Péronne and Cambrai stations being heavily assailed.

Twelve of our airplanes, including one night bombing machine, are missing.

PARIS, Aug. 13. — The War Office statement on aviation, issued tonight, reads:

On the night of Aug. 12-13 our bombarding airplanes dropped twenty-nine tons of bombs on stations and enemy establishments at Tergnier, Ham, Nesles, St. Quentin, and Noyon. Fires are reported to have been seen at several places.

On the 12th eleven German airplanes were brought down or put out of action. Four captive balloons were destroyed.

The War Situation

By THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The allied progress still continues in the battle of Picardy, but on a much smaller scale. As was stated yesterday, the battle is one of limited objectives in so far as each individual attack is concerned. All of these attacks, however, are centred on one main objective and have but one purpose.

This is particularly true of the southern wing of the fighting front, where the French are struggling toward the Oise, with the object of flanking the Germans out of the territory south of the Lassigny-Noyon line. It was here that the greatest pressure was again exerted yesterday. The German position is not comfortable, as it is open to vital attacks from several directions. A French offensive on a limited front east of the Oise River will bring considerable difficulty; the present attack driving eastward from the neighborhood of Lassigny will also produce complications; while an attack from the south on the west bank of the river will have the same result.

It may be expected that the Germans will sooner or later vacate this region for two reasons. One is that they may have to. Another is that it is no longer of any value to them. This territory was gained as the result of an effort to reach Compiègne and link up the fighting front at Montdidier with that along the Marne. This phase of the subject was discussed in these columns at the time of the Matz Valley offensive. It is sufficient to note here that since the failure of the Marne drive through the allied offensive the ground gained by the Germans in the Matz Valley has but little value.

It has, it is true, given them more extended use of Noyon as a base, but this is relatively unimportant since the railroad line which runs through Noyon was cut by the French where their line crossed it south of Ribecourt. It may therefore be expected that the Germans will vacate this territory just as soon as it appears that it is dangerous for them to continue to hold it. As this time appears to be rapidly approaching, due to the French advance on the north, the retreat may be in process of preparation now.

As to the possibilities in the north where the British lines cross the Somme, it is noticeable that the fighting has died down there to a point of relative inactivity. This is caused by several things. The Germans have placed a very high value on their positions north of the Somme ever since 1915. At the time the battle of the Somme began in 1916 they held a very awkward angle over much the same ground as that now occupied. They clung to this stubbornly all through the battle and never did evacuate it altogether until the great retreat in the Spring of 1917 began. The territory which the Germans hold on the northern bank of the river has been bitterly contested during the present offensive and has been in the main successfully defended. In spite of the allied gains south of the stream, the Germans have held their positions generally, the British being able to push forward for but a short distance. The fighting, indeed, due to the type of the German resistence, has been brought almost to a complete stop.

One of the main reasons can be found in the situation about Arras. Arras has been the bulwark of the allied defense in Picardy for the last year. The high ground of Vimy Ridge has proved its value in a most substantial way. The only point at which this can be reached is from the German positions about Bucquoy, about half way between the Somme and the Scarpe. If the Germans were to be forced out of their positions north of the Somme and made to fall back along their former lines the entire situation in Flanders would be changed.

The German lines in Flanders, which are to some extent protected by the artillery in the south and its ability to hold the fire of the allied artillery behind Arras, would be in serious danger once the line south of the Somme were given up. If, for instance, the Germans should retire to the Somme, holding the position which they finally rested in after the battle of the Somme was ended and before the retreat was begun, it is almost certain that after a short time the battlelines north of Arras would undergo a similar readjustment.

Even at that, this retirement to the old line may be made. The Germans have no advantage in clinging to their present positions. They are in the open, subject to attack at any time, and with no barrier of any kind between them and the allied lines. The ground is almost level between them and the Somme; a sudden attack later throwing them back on the river might be fatal, as the crossing of such a stream under heavy pressure could be effected only with heavy losses. Therefore, we may see this move made before it is too late.

ECONOMIZE MEN, SAID LUDENDORFF

Captured Secret Order Shows Anxiety of High Command Over Waning Strength.

ISSUED BEFORE REVERSES

General Also Urged Retention of Spirit of Offensive as Essential to Victory.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 13, (Associated Press.)—A captured enemy secret order signed "Ludendorff," lays stress on the necessity of economizing men. The order asserts that the two elements essential to the future conduct of the war are to "maintain everywhere our fighting strength and the spirit of offensive."

The captured document was issued late in June, since which time not only have the German forces been materially whittled down by the allied armies, but, if the "spirit of offensive" still exists, it certainly is not among the troops that have been fighting at the Somme and Marne Rivers.

"It is essential," says the order in beginning, "that all commanders of whatever rank, as well as all troops, should be imbued with the idea that the war cannot be won by a stubborn defense, but only by a further succession of vigorous attacks. These attacks, however, cannot lead to victory unless we adhere to and improve on the methods of warfare adopted in the recent offensives."

The order goes on to say that everywhere, under the well-tried principles of the "Manual of Infantry Training in War," and the additions made by the high command, namely, von Hindenburg and Ludendorff, success had been gained at small cost. It cites as an example the operations southwest of Noyon from June 9 onward.

Must Avoid More Attacks.

"Not only is there a probability of obtaining other successes by these methods, but also the situation in regard to reinforcements compels us to perfect them still further," the order continues. "It is absolutely essential that we should avoid our old fault of attacking in too dense formations, and we should reduce our casualties by every possible means. The necessity holds equally good for the defensive fronts. The divisions must do their utmost to reduce casualties to the absolute minimum by a distribution in depth and the creation of extended outpost zones.

"Notwithstanding instructions," the order points out, "too much attention still is paid to the possession of ground, the holding or retaking of portions of trenches, villages and woods, and to fighting for points whose only value is that of prestige. Now, more than ever, divisions in the line during hostile attacks, large or small, must, if possible, employ elastic avoidance even on so-called unhealthy fronts."

The order is frank in explaining that, because of the reduced German strength, it frequently will be impossible to hold continuous trench lines, and recommends instead the creation of centres of resistance.

The document warns commanders that, should the enemy obtain a foothold within the German lines, they must consider carefully whether a counterattack is necessary or worth risking a large number of lives.

Another captured order informs the German regiments that they must provide their own defenses from low-flying allied airplanes, as the German aircraft resources are so low that they cannot be expected to fight off the enemy while they are being engaged "on reconnoissance work." This order adds that complaints from units harassed by low-flying allied planes will not be forwarded.

Hutier Admits Food Shortage.

The value that the Germans placed on ground that they have lost is seen in a captured order, signed by General von Hutier, drawing attention to the difficulties in Germany's economic situation, and calling on his troops to assist in affording all possible relief in regard to food supplies. The order is dated before the opening of the present offensive by the Allies, and begins by ruling that not a scrap of food or forage, beyond ration limitations, shall be consumed.

The document admits that the rations are "lacking in variety," and calls on the troops to "exploit the occupied territory and thereby relieve the homeland from sending us supplies." It warns the commanders to pay no attention to demands of their men for "more or better" rations, adding that "the intelligence of the soldiers must be aroused by the words and example of their leaders to understand the restrictions and the self-denial necessary to bring the war to a victorious end and bring about a German peace."

The order says: "Now and during the coming weeks the crops on the territory occupied and conquered must be harvested. Vast stretches of land and huge fields under good cultivation promise us a rich harvest."

It adds that extreme measures must be taken and that it must be remembered in allotting the billeting of the area that it should be done so as to overcome the labor shortage. In other words, the units that were resting were to have robbed the lands of crops planted by the French peasants.

In this connection it was ordered that "every available man must be used without reserve. For example, the higher staff orderlies and servants must go into the grain fields and form themselves into special working parties."

Lost Expected Harvest.

In conclusion, the order specified that the first work of the German soldiers should be devoted to the hay crop. The next task was to take an inventory of all the agricultural machinery and prepare it for use for "the coming harvest."

Now, however, a large portion of these growing and unharvested crops, as well as a considerable amount of agricultural machinery, has been taken by the allied forces. This section of France is a most productive wheat area and its loss to the Germans is a serious matter because of their lack of this grain in their rations.

GERMAN VERSION OF SOMME FIGHTING

Advancing British Columns Represented as Torn to Pieces by Flanking Fire.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13.—The German Semi-Official News Agency, in a dispatch to Berlin forwarded here, presents the following account of British operations during the third day of the offensive in Picardy.

"On the third day of the offensive, during a British attack north of the Somme on both sides of the Roman highway, British attacks were caught from the north in a flanking fire of shrapnel from German batteries situated on the heights east of Albert, while from the south of this position our machine guns, hidden in the woods on the steep banks of the Somme River, tore wide gaps in the attacking ranks and finally forced them to retire.

"The English fared no better south of the river. On both sides of the Roman Road, advancing British infantry again were taken under the flanking fire of weak German detachments which were behind the steep banks of the Somme, where they could not be reached by the British artillery fire. The attackers, astride of Proyart, encountered the defenders, who already had found cover in advanced saps of the old French defense systems, while the English attacking waves were caught without protection on the bare plateau by the German fire.

"On the rectilinear Roman Road enemy cavalry detachments ready for pursuit, munition columns, rearguard infantry reserves and machine gun formations were crowded together. Among this compact mass of men and horses the German shells worked terrible havoc, while our low-flying airplanes pelted the road with machine gun bullets. In the fearful confusion the English reserves, who had been confident of speedy further progress, and had been pushed forward too far, were forced to retire."

FOE'S COSTLY GAINS QUICKLY WON BACK

Germans Have Lost in Three Weeks Positions Acquired by Four Months of Effort.

ALLIES' LINES NOW SAFE

Hindenburg's 700,000 or More Casualties Go for Naught—Wedge Plan a Failure.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Aug. 13, (Associated Press.)—After the battle of the Avre the situation of the belligerents presents a change which for rapidity and extent has rarely been approached in military history. Marshal Foch's strategy and the masterly tactics of the Generals commanding the armies and groups of armies under him have wrested in three weeks from the Germans what required four months for them to obtain at a cost variously estimated at from 700,000 to 1,000,000 men.

The immediate results of the counteroffensives which will have the greatest bearing on subsequent operations are the clearing of the Château-Thierry pocket, ending the menace to Epernay and Paris; the liberation of Montdidier, ending the menace to Amiens; th efreeing of the important eastern railroad line from Paris to Chalons, and the equally important northern line from Paris to Amiens, restoring to the Allies means of communication which give them enormously greater ease in future movements of troops.

These successes render impossible any rupture of the line which would separate the French armies of the centre from those to the east, or a rupture of the junction between the French and British. The most disastrous consequence to the Germans, aside from the heavy losses they have sustained in men and material, is the collapse of their plan to drive wedges into the allied lines, and the subsequent widening and joining; which would have threatened general dislocation.

Marshal Foch's strategy in reducing the salients wrested the initiative in operations from the Germans, at once obliging them either to order a general retreat to a strong line, such as the Somme, or to engage reserves. The enemy adopted the second alternative, which, having failed, makes eventual retirement immensely more difficult.

The first phase of the battle of the Avre finds the French with a footing upon Thiescourt Plateau, west of Noyon, which has vital importance in future operations. The Germans must either recapture the position at high cost, if they can, or abandon Noyon, which means the fall of Roye and Lassigny, already under menace of imminent capture.

The disaster which menaced General von Hutier's army has been averted for the moment. The few narrow passages which are open for the withdrawal of his stores are so harassed by the bombs of aviators and the fire of heavy artillery that prompt escape is impossible, rendering probable a desperate effort by the Germans to cling to their 1914 line.

FRENCH AIR MASTERY IS NOW COMPLETE

German Machines Barred from Crossing the Lines—Supplies and Supports Brought Up.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Aug. 12.—As indicated by the communiqués, the battle has entered a new phase, a phase of German resistance, and the French, to some extent, are marking time to enable supplies and supports to be brought up.

In the First Army the situation has remained, to all intents and purposes, stationary, but work is being carried on actively on the roads by Italian laborers and French engineers, who are busy repairing bridges and generally facilitating the advance.

Montdidier is little more than a heap of ruins, even the cellars having been destroyed by the gunfire.

A significant note throughout the army is the absolute French predominance in the air. No German airplanes have crossed the French lines without being brought down, while on the major portion of the front the German artillery is silent. On the French front generally it can be stated that enemy aviation has shown little activity.

The enemy is showing signs of recovering to some extent from his disorder and has brought up fresh reserves, which are trying to re-establish the broken morale of the German troops in the sector and to hold on to the old positions of the 1915 line.

There is one well-marked and very encouraging feature in what for the most part is a stabilized situation. In the Thiescourt sector the line runs to the west of the St. Claude Farm and around the Belle Assise Farm. At the St. Claude Farm the Thiescourt position is seriously compromised on the west, for the farm is a good mile west of Moreuil, while near Belle Assise Farm the French have succeeded in obtaining a considerable footing on the southern portion of the mountainous mass of Thiescourt.

cow advices to the Rhenish Westphalian Zeitung. Unlimited power has been given to them to take all measures necessary to gain victory in the fight of the Soviet Republic against its enemies.

A new manifesto advocating the pitiless annihilation of all counter-revolutionaries has been issued by Premier Lenine, according to the same paper. Peasants retaining grain beyond their personal needs will be arraigned before revolutionary courts as enemies of the people. Capital punishment will be inflicted on illicit traders.

The advices add that leaders of the Kerensky party, who had been kept under strict Soviet observation, have suddenly disappeared. It is believed in Moscow that they have fled abroad.

The German newspapers show much perturbation over the situation in Russia as it affects Germany.

"Inexorable fate is driving Germany toward a fresh state of war with Russia unless a remedy shall be found at the last moment," says the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin.

The newspaper describes the German Embassy's flight from Moscow to Pskov as "a retreat from Russia," and continues:

"The Russian nation, torn asunder by a thousand conflicts and weakened by revolution and civil war, has yet found the energy and enough unanimity to tear up the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty. This much is clear. The peace made at Brest-Litovsk no longer exists."

LENINE'S WAR THREAT PROMPTLY QUESTIONED

Entente Representatives Said to Have Demanded Explanation Within Three Days.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—It is reported from Moscow, by way of Berlin, that the diplomatic representatives of the Entente have handed a collective note to War Minister Trotzky demanding within three days an explanation of Premier Lenine's threat that Russia would declare war "against Anglo-French imperialism," the Central News states today.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13. — Reports through Berlin that allied diplomats have demanded an explanation of a threat by Lenine, the Bolshevist Premier, of a declaration of war against the Allies are assumed here to refer to the action of American and allied Consuls in calling in a body on Aug. 1 on Tchitcherin, the Foreign Commissary at Moscow.

The Consuls, after being told by Lenine that a state of war existed between Russia and the Allies, demanded an explanation from Tchitcherin. They were told that the statement was not necessarily to be interpreted as a war declaration; that it rather was a declaration of a state of defense similar to the situation existing at one time betwee Russia and Germany.

American Consul Poole informed the State Department of the incident in a message dated Aug. 2 and received here six days later. He has not been heard from since.

The next word that was received from Moscow was a press report transmitted to the State Department stating that the British and French consular officials had been placed under arrest by the Bolsheviki. The Consuls later were reported released.

Since these events occurred Lenine and Trotsky have fled to Kronstadt, according to reports from several sources. The State Department is awaiting further word from Mr. Poole with keen interest.

GERMANY'S PERIL IN EAST.

London Press View That Prussianism Is Reaping Whatever It Has Sown.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—GGermany, in the bitterest hour of defeat in the west she has yet known, is menaced in the east not only by the advance of the allied expeditions, but by the perpetually growing movement of unorganized resistance to her occupation, says The Daily Telegraph in commenting on the situation in Russia.

There is not a part of Russia where German troops are stationed where the commanders have not all they can do to hold the people down by force of arms. The task, the newspaper adds, will soon call, if it has not already, for strong reinforcements, apart from the question of meeting the allied expeditions. The Telegraph continues:

"If the enemy is in peril in the west, he is little better off in the east, and Prussianism is reaping wherever it has sown."

The removal of the German Embassy to Pskov, says The Daily Chronicle, is an admission by the Germans of their intense unpopularity in Russia.

The Daily News says that the salient fact of the political situation in Russia is the failure of the Bolsheviki to provide a rallying point for the nation. It believes that the fall of Lenine and Trotzky would be the first step toward a solution of the problem, for it would mean the emergence in Russia of forces disposed to stand for national self-assertion as against exploitation by Germany.

RUSSIAN SITUATION IN A CRITICAL PHASE

Red Guards from German Frontier Being Hurried Against Czechs and Allied Aid Is Slow.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—From sources familiar with the Russian situation in its many phases was obtained today the following summary of present conditions, based on the latest authentic information:

The Bolshevist Government, if it can be described as such, is deadly afraid of the Czech movement, and is using every means to overthrow it before outside help reaches its leaders. Lenine and Trotzky are believed to have made a secret agreement with the Germans which will permit them to withdraw all the Red forces from the German border, so that their hands may be free to deal with the Czechs on the Volga. It is known that a great number of Russian organizations have joined the Czechs, and the peasants throughout a large part of Little Russia are supporting them, but this assistance is sporadic, ill-armed, and not to be relied on in a military sense.

There can be no doubt that toward the south of Lake Beikal the Czech forces are very hard pressed, and their position calls most earnestly for assistance in munitions and food. The army commanded by General Semenoff has suffered grave reverses, while he himself seems hardly to command the confidence of the other Czech leaders. The outcome of this division of parties deprives the embryo Russian Republic of real coherence and the power of concerted movement, but among its prominent figures Admiral Koltchak is well thought of by the people, and the loyalty of Alexieff remains absolutely unimpaired.

Unhappily, in dealing with Russia one has to survey a very large field covered by widely scattered units. For instance, in the Caucasus the Turks are advancing on Baku in disregard of German wishes, but they are in no great strength, and that important city may yet be saved. Even if it falls into Turkish hands the theory of Turco-German penetration into Central Asia remains as nebulous as ever. In Turkestan the Bolsheviki have been defeated severely, and public opinion is almost unanimously against them. Even in the Caspian the fleet is believed to be friendly to the Allies, while any attempt by the Bolsheviki to control the Transcaspian Railway will in all probability be opposed most strenuously by the Bokharans, who, in this matter, will be joined by the nomad Cossacks.

Turning to the Far East, the question of introducing martial laws has arisen at Vladivostok. Officers in command of the allied forces are well aware that they have not sufficient men really to establish law and order throughout a large and disturbed area, and the Russian authorities themselves not only recognize the absolute necessity of some system of martial law, but are actually urging it on the Allied Headquarters Staff as the only means of relieving a most complicated local situation.

Well-informed opinion in Japan, which is in close touch with the position of affairs in that region, sees clearly that Japan must look to America for support if she takes wider action in Siberia, and must in consequence be careful to keep closely in touch with the Government at Washington. It is believed by those who can best sum up all the difficulties facing the Allies in Russia that, although attempts are being made to keep separate the two issues of relief for the Czechs and literal intervention in Siberia and elsewhere, the final merging of the two questions is only a matter of days or weeks.

One element that must be avoided is any show of ambiguity in purpose or weakness in carrying out that purpose. With the object lessons of Serbia and Rumania before their eyes, it will be absolutely disastrous to the allied cause if the Czechs and other elements tending toward constitutional government in Russia should have the slightest reason to utter again that fatal reproach, "Too late!"

On the whole, it may be fairly assumed that there is a distinct upward tendency in Russia, and this is likely to be helped enormously by the depression, if not actual despair, prevalent in Germany, and the open revolutionary talk indulged in by the mixed nationalities in Austria. Events will probably march quickly before the end of the month. Any great development of the present magnificent fighting on the western front would certainly be followed by the utter collapse of the "Red" party in Russia, and this alone is an outcome devoutly to be hoped for.

The occupation of Archangel was accomplished almost bloodlessly, so utterly weary was the entire population of the reign of terror established by the Bolsheviki. The enemy forces there, which were so easily overcome, consisted of about 8,000 men. Meanwhile, despite the growing reluctance of the Finnish Government, as well as the Finnish people, to break with the Allies, the Germans now have some 50,000 men operating to the north of the Gulf of Finland.

VON TAUBE ALLIES' FOE.

Renegade Russian General Commands Teuton Ex-Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—German and Austrian former prisoners operating with the Bolsheviki in Siberia are commanded by the renegade Russian General von Taube, who at the beginning of the war was removed from his Russian command on account of his pro-German proclivities. This information was made public today by Captain Vladimir S. Hurban, the Czechoslovak officer in Washington, in a report to Professor T. G. Masaryk.

Captain Hurban said that von Taube was formerly in command of the prison camp at Irkutsk and while there was noted for his persecution of the Slavic prisoners and the favoritism shown the Germans and Magyars. After the Bolshevist revolution he deserted the old regime and as chief of staff of the Irkutsk Government began, with the aid of German and Magyar officers, the organization of an army of the prisoners.

He ordered the attack on the unarmed Czechs at Irkutsk last May and after the Bolshevist defeat was saved from execution at the hands of the Czechs by the intervention of the French and American Consuls. Von Taube now commands the Bolshevist forces between Irkutsk and Vladivostok.

PERSHING AND MEN DECORATED BY KING

England's Monarch on Visit to Front Honors Our General and Soldiers.

TROOPS FOUGHT AT HAMEL

King Cheered by American Forces, Whom He Reviews on His Tour.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY AT THE BRITISH FRONT, Aug. 13.—While visiting an old château back of the lines today, I came upon a squad of American soldiers standing in line under some beautiful elms. The King of England, dressed in the uniform of a Field Marshal, accompanied by his staff in picturesque dress, was going from man to man, pinning upon their breasts medals in recognition of their share in the recent victory at Hamel over the Germans and shaking hands with each.

Most of the men thus honored were from the Middle West. Others, wounded and in the hospitals, were similarly honored today at the King's order.

Afterward, in a quaint room in the corner of the château, the King met Generals Pershing and Bliss and privately conferred on them the Order of the Bath and St. Michael and St. George, respectively. The room was occupied by an aged woman, who had three brothers, Generals in the French Army, and a fourth brother a Colonel.

Military medals were awarded to Sergeants J. E. Krum and Frank A. Koljane; Corporals Andrew C. Shabinger and Lester C. Whitson; Privates C. W. Keane, William M. Linsky, J. Sweredo, Fred B. Wilkins.

Military crosses were given to First Lieutenant Frank E. Schram, Second Lieutenants Michael Komoroski and Harry Yagle.

Distinguished conduct medal was awarded to Private Harry Shelly. Of the wounded a military cross was given to First Lieutenant Albert Jefferson; military medals to Corporals H. Zyburt, Raymond H. Powell, and Sergeant A. Erhard. Distinguished conduct medals to Corporals Thomas Pope, Albert E. Fainsipp, and John Desmidt.

Pope rushed a machine gun crew singly, bayoneting several of its crew, and stood astride the gun keeping the remainder of the detachment at bay until the arrival of reinforcements, when the crew were killed or captured.

Shabinger was wounded in the beginning of the engagement, but remained in charge of his squad, directing the men until the objective was won.

Powell volunteered to recapture an advanced post, leading his squad through a violent shellfire and bombing the enemy out of the post, facilitating the advance of the line.

Linsky, although wounded in the right arm by shrapnel, continued to carry a Lewis gun during an assault.

Shelly, with one Australian, captured an enemy sniping post and eight prisoners.

Painsipp alone attacked a machine gun in the face of fire and tried to upset it, but a wounded leg prevented, so he bombed the crew, saving the advancing troops from severe casualties.

Wilkins performed a similar exploit.

Yagie and Koljane, with two Australians, rushed a machine gun crew, capturing eight prisoners.

Keane, directing stretcher bearers in an area swept by machine guns, when the bearers were killed, forced German prisoners to carry off wounded.

Desmidt's platoon was under heavy machine-gun fire until Desmidt and an Australian crept up, seized the gun and forced its crew to carry it back to the allied lines.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Aug. 13, (Havas Agency.)—King George, who arrived here several days before the offensive began, has left the front. While here he surveyed the battlefield and visited Amiens and Villers-Bretonneux, his tour taking him to all the army headquarters, where he congratulated the officers and bestowed several decorations, notably the Great Cross of the Bath on Generals Byng and Plumer.

The King also visited American and French troops and congratulated them on the work they have done.

General Debeny of the French Army was made Knight of the Bath.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—King George returned today from a nine days' trip to the British front in France. Among the many reviews he held was one of some American troops, who heartily cheered the monarch. King George expressed great admiration over the physique of the Americans and their eagerness for the fray.

TROELSTRA GIVES IT UP.

Pro-German Socialist's Pacifist Conference Plan Fails.

GENEVA, Aug. 13.—Pieter Troelstra, Dutch Socialist leader and Germanophile, who came to Switzerland in order to arrange an international pacifist conference, has announced from Vevey that he is returning home.

The British Government's refusal to issue a passport to Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor Party in the House of Commons, appears to be the finishing blow to the enterprise of Troelstra, but the Germans, especially since their recent defeats, continue to exert heavily their peace propaganda in Switzerland. This propaganda chiefly is concentrated at Geneva and the object frankly is to get into touch with the allied representatives.

SOMMERSTAD SUNK NEAR NEW YORK

boat, and this morning we got into the lifeboat. There was no time to save any of our effects, and every member of the crew left her with only what we had on. It was fortunate that no one was injured by the explosion of the torpedo. One of the sailors sprained his ankle by jumping from the rail of the main deck into the yawl, and I did the same jumping into the lifeboat."

The Sommerstad is the twelfth Norwegian vessel that has been sunk by U-boats off the American coast since May 18, but the first to be destroyed by a torpedo, as the others, including four sailing vessels, have been sent to the bottom by shell fire.

The Sommerstad was a single screw steamship of 3,875 gross tonnage, built at Newcastle, England, in 1906, and was 340 feet long and 47 feet beam.

U-BOAT RAID PROBLEM TAKEN UP BY CABINET

Secrecy About New Plans to Fight Menace Maintained After Unusually Long Session.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—German submarine raids in American waters were understood to have been discussed today at an unusually prolonged session of the Cabinet, but if any new plans for combating this menace to helpless fishing craft, lightships, and other vessels were formulated by President Wilson and his advisers, the fact was not disclosed.

The only report of the activities of the raiders reaching the Navy Department during the day told of the destruction of the Norwegian steamer Sommerstad yesterday morning off Fire Island. The destruction of the Sommerstadt by a torpedo which passed under the ship's bow and later circled and struck the vessel amidships gave rise to a suggestion that the torpedo was controlled by radio on the submarine, but this was ridiculed by naval experts.

They explained that the course of a torpedo is regulated by the gyroscope, which can be so set before discharging that the weapon will describe a circle. This has been done time and again during torpedo practice in the American Navy, so as to return the weapon to the ship discharging it, high officials said, and it has not been an uncommon thing for torpedoes fired by German submarines to take similar courses. With the torpedo's steering gear set so the weapon will run in a circle it becomes almost doubly effective, naval officers explained, for if it misses the object on its outward course, the possibility remains that it will strike after it turns about, a possibility that is increased if the ship attacked goes full speed ahead, as the Sommerstadt did.

No additional reports on the depth bomb attack by an American destroyer on a submarine off the Virginia coast have reached the Navy Department, but it now seems fairly well established that it occurred Sunday after gas from oil supposed to have been discharged from a submarine overcame six men in the Coast Guard Station and Lighthouse on Smith's Island, North Carolina, Saturday evening. While most naval experts accept with great reservation the theory that the gas was from a submarine, Secretary Daniels said today he believed the report as given by the commandant of the Coast Guard Station was correct. It was accepted by the commandant of the Sixth Naval District who must have satisfied himself concerning it, Mr. Daniels said, before transmitting it to the department. Additional reports have been requested by the department and are expected soon.

No previous accounts of gas attacks by submarines have been received, nor has there been any information coming to the department that the U-boats are equipped for such attacks. Some officials, however, do not regard it as at all improbable that, in carrying out their campaign of "frightfulness" the Germans would make whatever use of gas by submersibles that might be found possible.

Though thirty-one vessels have been sunk by U-boats off the Atlantic Coast since May, most of the ships have been small, many only being fishing schooners, and the loss of life has been very slight. The department, it was said, was taking all possible measures to deal with the submarines.

U-BOAT OFFICER DANCED WITH AMERICAN FLAG

Mate of Fishing Schooner Sunk Off New England Coast Says Germans Were Drunk.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Aug. 13.—The auxiliary schooner Earl and Nettie was added today to the list of fishing vessels sunk by a German submarine off Georges Bank Saturday. The six members of the crew, picked up 100 miles east of Nantucket and brought here with four survivors of the schooner Lena May, reported that their vessel had been sunk by gunfire after having been looted by a raiding squad from the U-boat.

Efforts to find other fishermen adrift in dories were held up by a fog so dense that navigation in these waters was attended by the utmost danger. The boat bringing the survivors of the Earl and Nettie and the Lena May picked its way cautiously and made port safely.

With the arrival of the men from the former, the number of fishing vessels known to have been sunk was increased to ten. Two steamers, the Penistone, of British registry, and the Swedish freighter Sydland, were also sent to the bottom off the New England coast by the submarine. Captain Frank Lynch and two members of the crew of the Lena May had not been accounted for by shipmates who reached here.

The Earl and Nettie's men reported that they were subjected to many indignities by the U-boat's crew. The personal effects of the fishermen, of little intrinsic value, were taken, along with provisions and clothing. When they were ordered into the dory they were told to be quick about it, and they were close by when their vessel was shelled. In several instances requests that they be permitted to retain trinkets were refused by the enemy, who swore at them, and showed a more hostile attitude than that reported by the crews of other boats sent down.

An American flag, torn from the masthead of the little schooner Lena May, one of the fishermen sunk by a German submarine off the New England coast Saturday, was taken aboard the enemy craft by a German officer, who wrapped it around his shoulders and gave a grotesque exhibition of dancing, while his men, each armed with a revolver, looked on and cheered.

This was the story told here today by survivors of the vessel, who were forced to witness the performance. The fishermen had been ordered aboard the U-boat, where ten of them stood against the conning tower to be photographed. As they were being lined up for the picture they were jeered at by the U-boat crew, and knocked about when they failed to move as rapidly as the commander ordered. The mate of the Lena May said:

"The Germans were half drunk at least. You would have thought that, too, had you seen the dance of the German officer, with the Stars and Stripes draped about his shoulders, and heard the cheering as the flag finally was flung down and stamped on, amid shrieks from our captors. Finding a side of fresh beef in our galley, they set up a roar that resembled that which comes from a crowd at a ball game. The way they cheered made me think they were half-starved."

A member of the submarine crew was asked why they wanted a photograph. "That goes back to Germany," he replied, "to show what we do over here. We have quite a lot of them. They look good in Berlin."

All the men from the Lena May and the Earl and Nettie, another fisherman sent down by gunfire, said they received outrageous treatment at the hands of the Germans. Rising to the surface in the midst of the fleet the submarine commander found more vessels than he could sink immediately. They were told to stand by and await destruction.

In the desire to obtain food and clothing, the commander set out in a dory, and to save his own men from the work of rowing Captain Frank Lynch of the Lena May and two other fishermen were required to man the boat. The dory moved swiftly, but Captain Lynch was ordered repeatedly to hurry.

The continual jeering of the Germans got on the nerve of the fishermen, who were hardy men accustomed to many dangers, but they remained quiet, for while orders were shouted in German, which they could not understand, the sight of many revolvers showed that they would have no chance if they offered resistance. The crew was encouraged by officers of the U-boat. There was a fresh outburst as the fishermen boarded their dory and pulled away.

"They had taken everything we had except the clothes we wore," the mate said, "but we were glad to get away. The thing that hurt most was the way they shouted while stamping on our flag."

The crew of six men of the sword-fishing schooner Cruiser, who were thought to have lost their lives when their craft was sunk by a German submarine off Georges Banks Saturday afternoon, were brought in here today. They rowed for 180 miles in their dories before they were rescued off Great Round Shoal lightship, six miles from this island.

TWO SKIPPERS SAW U-BOAT.

British Captain Says He Fired on Enemy Off Fire Island.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 13.—The Captain of a British freighter which arrived today from England reported having sighted a German submarine yesterday morning about forty miles southeast of Fire Ireland. The U-boat appeared on the surface about two miles astern of the steamship and the naval gun crew fired a shell from the four-inch gun aft, and then the vessel zigzagged away.

In speaking of the incident the Captain said that he was not sure whether the shell struck the submarine, as there was a slight haze on the water, but he saw the undersea craft disappear after it was fired on.

The officers of an American steamship arriving from the West Indies also reported sighting a U-boat off Fire Island yesterday morning about 10 o'clock and had no doubt it was the same one that had sunk the Norwegian steamship Sommerstadt two hours before. The German submarine was astern about three miles away, the officers said, and as the vessel carried no guns the Captain put on full speed and zigzagged away. The U-boat hung on in the wake of the vessel for nearly half an hour and then gave up the chase.

PERSHING HOLDING HIS SHARE OF FRONT

Western Theatre Divided Into Three Parts, with Americans on Right of the Line.

EXTENDS TO SWISS BORDER

First Army Formed, Commander Notifies Washington—Our Line "the Road to Berlin."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Secretary Baker was formally advised today by General Pershing that the First American Field Army had been created, General Pershing retaining command of the army as well as of the entire expeditionary force for the present. The dispatch added nothing to details of the army organization already made known from Paris, however, Mr. Baker said.

The announcement is regarded as having deep significance at the War Department mainly because it places the American Army in France on the same footing as the French and British forces there.

Formation of the army is taken here to mean that the Americanization of a definite portion of the front has been completed. Supply lines, railways, bases, storage facilities, debarkation ports, and the like, created and operated by Americans, stand behind the First Army. The only statement of the location of this American front given is that it is "south of the Marne." Presumably this means a part at least of the long line from St. Mihiel to the Swiss border where American troops have been put in at intervals during the last few months.

The extent of that front has not been disclosed, nor has the definite strength of the army been given. The advices indicate that it comprises, however, five full corps, which means approximately 1,250,000 men.

The effect of the taking over of the line is to make a definite beginning at apportioning the long front. The British hold the left flank, aided by the Belgians, from the sea to the juncture of the British Fourth Army and the French First Army in Picardy, where an offensive is being carried out at present.

In that position the British are not only holding their share of the line, but stand between the enemy and the channel, which would be his only road to England while the British fleet exists.

French Block Road to Paris.

The French armies presumably are being concentrated wholly between the Picardy juncture with the British and the American left, beyond Verdun. They block the roads to Paris.

To the Americans has fallen the remainder of the front to the Swiss border, when the other American armies shall have been formed. The First Army undoubtedly now holds the bulk of that line, with such French help as is necessary. The whole line probably is under General Pershing's direct command even the French corps or divisions that are necessary until additional American troops arrive. The American Commander will hereafter direct all operations on his front. He has as much freedom of action on his own lines as has Sir Douglas Haig on the British front or General Petain on the French, for he stands on an equality with them. All three are under Marshal Foch for the major campaigns.

As director of the army in the field, General Pershing will be well situated to weigh the qualities of the men he has assigned temporarily as Corps Commanders. From those five officers he probably will select the Commander of the First Army later, and opinion here leans toward Major Gen. Hunter Liggett, now commanding the First Corps on the Vesle front, as his choice. It is expected, also, that General Pershing will soon name his permanent Corps Commanders, the appointment carrying with it the rank of Lieutenant General.

General Liggett's corps probably is regarded as the mobile reserve of the First Army, and as such is being employed on the French front. Should aggressive operations be undertaken on the American front, however, this corps probably would be used there, supplemented by French and possibly British mobile reserves sent by General Foch. In that case, while General Foch would map out the objects of the action in a broad way, General Pershing would command the joint forces.

Hold the Route to Berlin.

This recalls the fact that the American sector includes what always has been considered the logical road to Berlin for French advances. It was across lines now held by Americans that the French struck in 1914 before the plunge of the German Army through Belgium localized the war in Northern France.

While the enemy is still in Northern France it may be that no major attack can be attempted through these gateways. The campaigns in Picardy and at the Marne, however, are aimed at forcing him back until the opportunity comes to drive back at him, and it is regarded by officers here that it will be over the American lines that the real thrust at Germany will be driven home.

MAY NOT USE BATTERY PARK

Government Drops for the Present Project to Erect Buildings There.

Benedict Crowell, Assistant Secretary of War, yesterday indicated in a telegram to the American Defense Society that the Government had abandoned, at least for the present, its contemplated use of Battery Park. Belief, however, that the park may later be employed because of reported attempts at profiteering by loft and office renters was unallayed by the official reassurance. The statement issued last night by the society reads:

It now appears practically certain, owing to the protests made by many patriotic citizens against the Government tearing up Battery Park and using it for office buildings, that this will not be done. In reply to a telegram of protest sent by Miss Elisabeth Marbury, the organizer of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Defense Society, Assistant Secretary of War, Benedict Crowell says:

"Have plans before me for War Department office housing in New York which, if effected, will make use of Battery Park site unnecessary. I appreciate your reasons for opposing the use of this site and now expect to be able to make other arrangements."

It was ascertained that when the Federal authorities picked this city for the location of Quartermaster Corps warehouses and offices the demand was for more than 350,000 square feet of space. This estimate of requirement did not take into consideration the expansion that will be necessary when the nation goes upon the basis of a five-million-man army.

The theory that the Government had found difficulty in obtaining quarters arose from the fact that business men of late have been complaining of steep and sudden increase in office rentals. The tendency of out-of-town enterprises to centralize in New York has made office space precious, and as a consequence rentals have advanced.

GATES SUIT DISMISSED.

Judge Knox Had Disposed of the Thorburn Case Last Spring.

The belated application of a dating stamp made it appear that the complaint of Robert H. Thorburn, of 64 West 53rd Street, in a Sherman Law suit for damages aggregating $2,130,000 against Mrs. Dellora R. Gates, as executrix of the estates of John W. and Charles G. Gates, had been filed for the first time on Monday in the Federal District Court. As a matter of fact the complaint had been in possession of the court since April, and had been dismissed by Judge Knox for lack of jurisdiction.

The copy of the complaint was returned on Monday to the office of the Clerk of the Court by Judge Knox, who had used it in connection with a motion made last Spring by Taylor, Humes & Begg, attorneys for Mrs. Gates, for an order quashing the summons. Judge Knox decided the motion in favor of Mrs. Gates and made an order dismissing the complaint and setting aside the summons served on Mrs. Gates.

In May, 1915, Mr. Thorburn first served a summons upon Mrs. Gates in this litigation. According to the attorneys this was vacated and in February, 1916, Mr. Thorburn again tried the same proceeding with the same result. The suit dismissed by Judge Knox this year was the third attempt.

READING EXTOLS OUR VIGOR IN WAR

Swift Offer and Speeding of Our Men, He Says, Was Vital Point in Conflict.

NATION IS DETERMINED

Throwing All Its Power Into Winning the Conflict, He Tells British People.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The Earl of Reading, British Ambassador to the United States, in a long statement to the press, details America's wark work as he has observed it in the last six months.

"If I speak in terms of enthusiastic admiration, it is because none other would convey my thoughts," he says.

After discussing America's achievements in feeding the Allies and building ships, Lord Reading continues:

"In no direction, however, is the spirit of whole hearted co-operation more striking than in the magnificent contribution of America to the man power of the Allies. When in the grave anxieties of the end of March at the request of the Prime Minister and the Cabinet, I asked the President to order without delay the acceleration of the dispatch of American troops and to allow them to be trained and used with the British and French, his answer was an immediate and wholehearted assent. His only limitation as to numbers was the shipping capacity to carry the men.

"It was a historic moment which may in the future be regarded as the turning point of the war. Both the British and French nations were quick to appreciate the spirit of this contribution, made so promptly and at so opportune a moment. It has proved of such value that Marshal Foch has been able to meet the great German attack by an allied counter offensive and has not only wrested the initiative from the enemy, but has gained important victories.

"Since America has acquired knowledge of the situation her material resources, financial wealth and the brains and force of character of her millions, in fact all the physical and moral forces of this giant among nations are turning in one direction—to the attainment of victory. Americans are idealists, but they also are business people.

"Having realized what victory and failure will mean to humanity, with their characteristic single-mindedness and power of concentration, they are making the winning of the war their only business and, if I know anything of them, having undertaken the task they will persevere until their object is achieved.

"I wish I could adequately convey to the British people the warm-headed generosity of my reception as British Ambassador by the American people. It is given me as British representative and is an expression of the admiration of Americans for the part played by the British people in this war.

"Prejudices are giving way to a better understanding of the ideals animating both the American and British people, ideals that will carry them along the same road in the same direction in whole-souled co-operation for the progress of humanity and the peace of the world."

B. R. T. EARNS $4,112,054.

Report Shows a Decrease—Williams Again Asks Aid.

The report of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for the year ended June 30, 1918, made public yesterday, shows net income of $4,112,054, a decrease of $1,083,184, compared with the previous year's figures. The gross earnings from operation amounted to $30,506,497, an increase of slightly more than $1,000,000, but the operating expenses amounted to $18,111,804, an increase of more than $1,370,000. The increase in taxes and fixed charges alone totaled $695,189.

After presenting detailed statistics, Colonel T. S. Williams, President of the corporation, enters into a long discussion of the need of granting the company permission to increase its fares. He says that it is conceded that adequate and efficient street railway operation is vitally essential to a vigorous prosecution of the war and enumerates the following steps taken by the Government at Washington which have brought about a tremendous increase in the cost of operating the road. (1) Tens of thousands of experienced railroad men drafted; (2) Additional thousands diverted to war industries; (3) Competitive standards of wages established which street railroads cannot meet with existing revenue; (4) The price of coal doubled, and difficulty of getting at any price; (5) The price of every commodity street railroads buy increased; (6) Materials essential to street railroad construction and maintenance absorbed or withheld; (7) The supply of money commandeered; (8) The rate of interest increased, and (9) Millions of new taxes imposed.

At the same time, Colonel Williams says, the Government at home has in most cases refused or seems reluctant to grant even the partial relief which it could give, namely, the right to increase fares and the suspension of expensive and onerous exactions.

GIANTS TOPPLE BRAVES TWICE AND SEASON'S SCORE FOR THE TWO TEAMS IS 14 GAMES TO 0

BRAVES HELD AT BAY FOR ENTIRE SEASON

LOCAL PLAYERS GO WEST

Start for Final Drive Around the Circuit with Pennant Hopes Glimmering.

The Giants separated the Boston Braves from two more games at the Polo Grounds yesterday, which makes a merry total of fourteen victories over Charley Herzog and George Stallings for the season. The nearest the Braves ever came to beating the Giants this year was tying the score a few times. New York won the first game yesterday 5 to 4 and the second 5 to 2.

McGraw's lads started west last night for the final swing around the circuit. While they have gained a little on the Cubs during the last few days, it looks like too big a task to catch them within the next two weeks.

New York had the first game all sewed up 5 to 0 when the Bostons were seized with a run spasm in the eighth and came pretty close to tying the score. As it was they made four runs and loaded the bases in the ninth. Big Fred Toney came into the game at the last minute, and New York pulled out of a ticklish predicament.

Causey fell by the wayside before the first game was over, Demaree taking his place, but Albertus was slipping fast when Toney came to the rescue. The Giants got their first counter in the opening game in the second inning. Doyle walked and went to third on Zimmerman's single, Larry scoring while Thorpe was forcing Zim at second. In the sixth, Burns singled and went to second on a wild pitch. Georgie traveled to third on Young's sacrifice bunt and tallied on Fletcher's sacrifice fly.

Zim opened the seventh with a single, stole second and went to third on Wilson's error. Thorpe's single scored Zimmerman, and Sicking sacrificed. McCarty jarred a double to left, sending Thorpe home, after which Causey fanned. Burns singled, scoring McCarty. Georgie stole second and third, and Young walked. On a double steal, Burns was caught at third.

The Boston upheaval came in the eighth, with two gone. After Herzog went out at first, Taggert walked and Chadbourne flied to Young. Terry singled and Red Smith walked, filling the bases. Konetchy's single scored Taggert and Terry, and Art Wilson's safe smash sent Red Smith home. That was the end of Causey and Demaree happened along. Rawlings singled off Al and scored Konetchy. The situation was brimming over with seriousness. Old Doc Crandall, pinch-hitting for George ended the trouble by flying to Thorpe.

That was the Braves thirteenth straight defeat by the Giants this season, and they collected thirteen hits in their downfall. Pat Ragan had the honor of pitching the last game the Braves will play here against the Giants this year. The honor developed into a misfortune. Pol Perritt did the mound duty for the Giants, and as usual the Braves got gay with him in the ninth, but he put them in their place after they had gathered two runs.

The Giants' big inning off Ragan was the fifth. Sicking started with a single and Rariden walked. Perritt sacrificed and Ragan missed a force-out play on Sicking at third, the bases being crowded, which wasn't very comfortable on such a hot day. George Burns then walloped a three-bagger to right centre, sending Sicking, Rariden, and Perritt home. Burns scored on Young's single.

Boston's splash in the ninth started when Terry walked and went to second on Red Smith's single. Konetchy's safe slap scored Terry and Red Smith went to third when Wilson forced Konetchy. After Rawlings skied to Doyle, Crandall singled and scored Red Smith.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Pittsburgh and Chicago broke even in a double header here today. Chicago won the first game, 2 to 1, in a ninth-inning rally which was started on Ellam's fumble of Mann's grounder. Pittsburgh won the second game easily, 7 to 2, by bunching hits.

DODGERS TAKE TWO GAMES FROM PHILS

Brooklyn Wins First Contest in Ninth and Triumphs in Twelfth of Second.

The Robins furnished a brace of eleventh-hour rallies yesterday at Ebbets Field and took both ends of a double bill from Pat Moran's Phillies. The first ended with the Robins on the agreeable end of a 2 to 1 score, and in the second the Flatbush athletes triumphed after twelve innings by 4 to 3.

Jake Daubert was the hero in both conflicts. His batting saved the day for the Robins.

In the first game Meusel pounded Larry Cheney for a home run in the second inning and this margin looked formidable up to the eighth frame. Bradley Hogg was in many precarious situations, but somehow no Brooklyn run trickled across on him. Starting the eighth, Daubert got atriple when Meusel slipped in the grass fielding his blow to left field, and scored on Zach Wheat's sacrifice fly.

In the ninth, with one out, Miller was hit by a pitched ball, but was ont later at second when he overran the bag on Cheney's sacrifice. Johnston singled, sending Cheney to second and Olson was passed. Daubert then ripped a single through short, breaking up the game.

Dick Robertson faced the Phillies in the second skirmish, while Elmer Jacobs was on the mound for the Moranites.

In the twelfth, with Johnston out, Olson singled and went to third when Daubert singled. Zach Wheat was passed, and then the squeeze play was worked, Hy Myers dropping a neat bunt along the first base line on which Olson scored.

BE FRANK LOWERS SARATOGA RECORD

Calumet Stable's Colt Runs Five and One-Half Furlongs in 1:05 at Spa.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, Aug. 13.—Be Frank, a two-year-old colt by John Johnson, owned by the Calumet Stable, was the sensational winner here today when he ran five and a half furlongs in 1:05 and clipped a fifth of a second from the mark made by R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Hannibal last Wednesday. Be Frank showed that he is a colt of high quality. Though he won a race for only $600 he ran the distance in a second and a fifth faster time than was accomplished by Samuel Ross's Knot, which captured the $3,000 Kentucky Stakes for two-year-olds, that was the feature of the program.

The race in which the new record attested that the track has dried out and is in normal condition was at first supposed to be a gift for John Sanford's Tuscaloosa, but though this filly remained favorite there was a strong play on Be Frank that indicated the result. Tuscaloosa, under the guidance of Walls, cut out a hot pace, but Ensor did not hurry Be Frank until he reached the stretch where he was in third place. Once let down Be Frank made a show of the favorite and came home an easy winner by two lengths.

The victory of Be Frank marked the fourth straight defeat of a public choice, the slaughter of favorites beginning when little Mergler went to sleep on Torchbearer in the third race. Torchbearer had the race well in hand at the eighth pole, but Mergler eased him and when Commander Ross's Monomoy started after him in the last sixteenth the boy was unable to get Torchbearer going again in time to avert defeat.

Commander Ross had the distinction of winning both on the flat and through the field, as his jumper Dramaturge carried top weight to victory in the selling steeplechase. Dramaturge just lasted to beat Captain Ral Parr's Le Marsouin by a length and a half.

W. R. Coe's Uncle's Lassie was the disappointing favorite in the Kentucky Selling Stakes. She got away well and was in front in the first furlong, only to give way to E. B. McLean's Trompeuse, which showed a flash of speed, but failed in the stretch, where Knot came through to win easily by three lengths.

NET MATCH TO ANDERSON.

Long Island Champion Defeats Donaldson in Junior Title Play.

Frank T. Anderson, the young Brooklyn tennis star, and Percy Kynaston reached the semi-final round of the New York tennis center junior championship on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club yesterday. The victory by Anderson was gained at the expense of Cecil Donaldson in straight sets, but it was a keen match all the way with the score 6—4, 7—5, 6—4. Kynaston disposed of C. Unterberg, this match also going in straight sets, but by the more one-sided score of 6—1, 6—0, 6—2. Both Kynaston and Anderson are now in the semi-final round.

The playing of the first round of the boys' championship placed four youths in the semi-final; C. V. Day, S. Schlesinger and Abraham Bassford, 3d, and S. Gibney, who drew a first round bye. The entry in this event was hardly of the proportions that might have been expected. Vincent Richards, the national boys' champion, is now in Boston playing in the national doubles event and he will compete there in the tennis center championship. Harold Taylor, one of the most promising of the junior players, is also in Boston and will compete in the junior event at the Hub.

The contest between Anderson and Donaldson was a struggle that brought out some fine tennis. The last meeting between these two was carried to five sets before Anderson won. Had Donaldson been a bit more steady there might have been at least one extra set yesterday. The youngster was prone to be somewhat wild on his ground strokes and piled up a number of double faults.

Anderson has been resting for about two weeks and this appears to have done much to bring his game back to the high plane which was evidenced when he won the Long Island championship. Both contestants played a hard hitting game, but Anderson was able to control his shots much better than his rival. He finished many of his points nicely with crisp volleying and was fairly steady from the deep court.

The summaries:

Boys' Singles, First Round.—C. V. Day defeated A. A. Ryan, 6—2, 6—1, 6—0; S. Schlesinger defeated L. E. Lanoff, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4; Abraham Bassford, 3d, defeated W. Warner, 6—1, 6—0, 6—0.

VETERAN NET TEAM VICTORS AT DOUBLES

Alexander and Wright Override All Early Opposition in National Title Play.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—There were no upsets and little brilliant tennis in the national doubles championship at Longwood today. The veteran players, Frederick B. Alexander and Beals Wright, played twice and went into the second round by virtue of two fairly easily won three-set matches, while Nat Niles and T. R. Pell, the top half favorites, met with little opposition.

Alexander and Wright first beat "Rab" Seaver and H. B. Bretz at 6—4, 6—0, 6—2, and at once took on Edwin Sheafe and J. S. Myrick, whom they beat, 6—4, 6—0, 6—2. A. N. Reggio and S. L. Rice offered little obstacle for Niles and Pell, the scores being 6—0, 6—1, 6—2.

Vincent Richards, boy's champion, and W. T. Tilden, Jr., had an easy time taking a 6—0, 6—1, 6—2 match from E. F. Thomas and J. B. Hughes, while the Chicagoans, Walter Hayes and Ralph Burdick, had no match, the Western champions making the second round on a default.

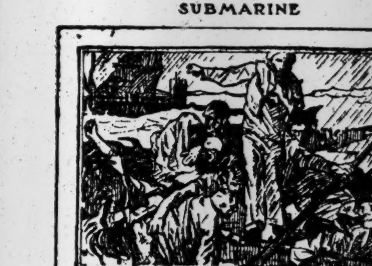

The summaries:

First Round—H. Fisher and S. Dunnack won from F. Simons and L. E. Mahan by default; E. H. Binzen and J. S. O'Boyle defeated S. L. Beals and W. Rand, 3—6, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4; J. S. Myrick and E. Sheafe defeated H. B. Finck and W. L. Wei, 6—3, 6—3, 9—7; F. B. Alexander and B. C. Wright defeated H. B. Bretz and R. C. Seaver, 6—2, 7—5, 6—2.

Second Round—A. Iler and H. B. O'Boyle won from K. Fisher and D. Dunnack by default; N. W. Niles and T. R. Pell defeated A. N. Reggio and S. L. Rice, 6—1, 6—3, 6—2; V. Richards and W. T. Tilden, Jr., defeated E. F. Thomas and J. B. Hughes, 6—0, 6—1, 6—2; E. H. Binzen and J. S. O'Boyle defeated J. Nowell and A. Kent, 6—2, 2—6, 6—8, 8—6, 8—6; I. Kumagae and H. Taylor defeated R. Cool, Gentle Summer Shoes

The thing that you will notice at once about your first pair of Dr. A. Reed Cushion Oxfords is that they seem to be made for your individual foot.

There is no period of pain in breaking them in. They handle you gently from the first. The cushion conforms pleasantly to each curve of your foot-sole.

These are cool oxfords, too, because of the cork layer that comes between you and the heated pavements. This is another comfort feature not to be had in other shoes.

'THREE FACES EAST' A WAR SPY MYSTERY

The Double Crossings of Who's Who in the German and English Secret Service.

ESPECIALLY WHO'S BOELKE?

Melodrama That Sacrifices Human Interest to Triple-Decked Mystification.

THREE FACES EAST, a play of the Secret Service, by Anthony Paul Kelly. At the Cohan & Harris Theatre.

Kugler	Joseph Selman
Helene	Violet Heming
Colonel Von Ritter	Fred J. Fairbanks
Captain Luchow	Otto Niemeyer
Georga Bennett	Charles Harbury
Lieutenant Arthur Bennett	Frank Westerton
Valdar	Emmett Corrigan
Thompson	Herbert Evans
Mrs. George Bennett	Marion Grey
Dorothy	Grace Ade
Miss Risdon	Cora Witherspoon
Hewlett	Harry Lambart
Yeats	Frank Sheridan
A Fugitive	David L. Leonard
Lieutenant Frank Bennett	William Jeffrey
Nurse	Mary Ilene Mack

The melodrama of mystification can scarcely go further than in "Three Faces East," produced last night by Cohan & Harris at their theatre in Forty-second Street. The title is the password of a gang of consummately able German spies operating in England, and the answer is "Forwards and back." The phrases are apparently symbolical. There is scarcely a person in the long cast whose true character does not wear at least three faces; and, as the evening progresses, the puzzled guesses of the audience go forward and back among them continually.

A prologue takes place in the Berlin headquarters, and witnesses the dispatch, via U-boat to the Irish coast and London, of a so-called "Fraulein Helene," who impersonates a murdered young Englishwoman and is on a secret mission to the head of the gang, one Franz Boelke. The remaining five scenes are in the household of a member of the British Cabinet. Until the final episode in the cellar, with a gigantic infernal machine loudly ticking out its seven minutes of life before blowing Lloyd George and his Ministry into smithereens, no one was quite sure who was who in this multitudinous assemblage of celebrities from Scotland Yards and the Wilhelmstrasse. It was a long, continuous game of double-crossing the double-crosser.

One joyous conjecture was that, given a purported English spy named Yeats who butt red his tack with brogue, the plot against the Cabinet must really be engineered by the Sinn Fein. Another had it that the proposed blowing up of the Lloyd George Ministry was no less than a political trick to bring the Conservatives back into power.

The truth of these well-meant guesses is neither confirmed nor denied. Yet there is possibly a clew as to the identity of the world-famous Boelke in the fact that by all odds the most noted actor in the cast is Emmett Corrigan, and when the loyalty of the ostensible German she-spy is in question it may be remembered that the lady is impersonated by no less charming and sympathetic a person than Violet Heming.

The author of the play, Anthony Paul Kelly, has hitherto figured as a writer of moving picture scenarios. This is his first written piece. The terseness in the action and the swift variety of the scenic development are strongly suggestive of the screen. The melodramatic character of the whole, moreover, gains powerfully from the intelligent and experienced management of Cohan and Harris. Puzzled as the audience was in its effort to locate heroine and villain, and not infrequently just a little exasperated, it was never bored. It strained forward, in fact, to catch each word and accent.

Yet it is by no means clear that the production is destined to have a success equal to the curiosity it aroused in the first night audience. Until the last five minutes there was no truly human interest, and no real comedy to cheer the intellect, so continuously occupied with untangling double crosses. Is it not possible to push this matter of mystification beyond the pale of popular approval? It will be interesting to watch results.

Frank Sheridan was the Hibernian of Scotland Yard, and with his brogue and his vigorously incisive mastery of the situation he evoked much admiring, if somewhat puzzled, laughter. William Jeffrey was the young lover who brought a vestige of romance into the last act. He struck so true an emotional note that one would willingly have had much more of him. Until he appeared, in fact, it had not been quite evident how void the evening was of any really dramatic interest, tense as the action was, and baffling the mystery.

"Mother's Liberty Bond" Closes.

"Mother's Liberty Bond," which opened at the Park Theatre last Friday night, has been withdrawn. The play, part of the proceeds of which were announced to go to the Sun Tobacco Fund, ran for only three performances. The house was dark on Monday night because, it was said, two mechanical airplanes used in the play were wrecked in a tryout and Edward Mackay and Charles Stevens, two members of the cast, were slightly injured. It was said that performances would be resumed last night, but the theatre was not opened.

WILLIS NAMED IN OHIO.

Wins Republican Nomination for Governor in Primary.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Wednesday, Aug. 14.—Former Governor Frank B. Willis received the Republican nomination for Governor over Edwin Jones and John H. Arnold at yesterday's Statewide primary election, according to returns compiled at 1 o'clock this morning.

Unofficial figures from 1,539 out or 5,752 precincts in the State, including returns from thirty-eight of the eighty-eight counties, indicated that if the present ratio was maintained Willis would defeat Jones by about 25,000 votes. Arnold ran a poor third.

Governor Cox and all other Democratic candidates for State offices were without opposition and were nominated.

Small bequests were left to other relatives and friends. The value of the estate is not disclosed.

THE SENATE POINTS THE WAY TO VICTORY.

The best service the Senate could render the country at this stage of the war would be to pass the bill changing the draft law ages without wasting a day in superfluous debate. It could be accomplished next week, and then it would be the turn of the House to show more interest in the matter than Chairman DENT of its Military Affairs Committee has yet exhibited. He has declined to do anything before Aug. 26, the date when Congress was to reconvene for business under the conditional three-day adjournment arrangement. How responsive to public sentiment the Senate, on the other hand, has been! Its leaders on Monday decided to reconvene on Thursday, the 15th, and a call was sent to absent Senators. Mr. CHAMBERLAIN announces that his committee will be ready to report the Administration Draft bill on that day, and the expectation is that it will be taken up by the Senate on Monday next. He urges that it be "rushed through."

We are glad to see that Senator REED is vigorously advocating immediate action on the bill. In the Senate on Monday he said that the tremendous task ahead of the Allies, if they were to win the war, must not be underestimated, that only preponderance of men and artillery would insure victory. "We will continue under the draft," he said, "to have "troops as fast as we have transports "up to Oct. 1. But we must not "stop there. We have much more to "do to win the war." But we shall "stop there" unless the draft ages are changed without delay and more man power becomes available for military uses and the industries.

Mr. CUMMINS of Iowa is another Senator who sees clearly and talks soundly on this subject. He is for the passage of the Draft Amendment bill at once. There are some Senators who find fault with Secretary BAKER because he was not prepared in June, when the Senate was ready for action, to have the draft ages changed. But Mr. BAKER has now seen the light and no one wants dispatch more than he does. We trust that when the Senate debates the bill no ancient history will be rehearsed. Let bygones be bygones. All speeches should be to the point.

This bill can be sufficiently discussed and put on passage in a week. It should not take three days to decide on the minimum age. What is supremely necessary is that the enemy should understand that the United States will place million after million of troops in the field to bring the war to an early victorious conclusion. The moral effect alone of a law to make all the effective man power of America available for the army and essential industries would be tremendous, incalculable. Today the Germans are being steadily crushed in the field and the morale of their army is being methodically broken down. The German people will soon know it and become a prey to depression. Let them realize that the Americans, who contributed so much to MARSHAL FOCH'S victory in the second battle of the Marne, have only just begun to fight, and that instead of having two or three corps engaged on the battlefront they will soon have an army of a million of fighting men, to be reinforced later on by several millions of soldiers, and they, the German people, will be undeceived and refuse to support their Government in its insane war policy.

The Administration Draft Amendment bill on the statute books would bring the end nearer than a substantial victory in the field. The Senate, therefore, would render a great service by passing the bill and putting upon the House the responsibility for unnecessary delay in acting upon it.

SIBERIA IS NOT YET SAFE.

GENERAL HORVATH, head of one of the three provisional governments in Siberia, is doubtless not wholly disinterested in asking for an allied army of 150,000 men to co-operate with the anti-German forces of that country, but he ought to be heard when he calls attention to the fact that in certain parts of Siberia Germans and Magyars and the Bolsheviki under their direction are still very strong. At Irkutsk, he says, a Czechoslovak force is surrounded by much greater numbers, and at another point a Czechoslovak detachment of several thousand men is in a critical position.

The Czechoslovak armies, according to the most trustworthy information, do not number more than 80,000 men, the bulk of whom are in Western Siberia or Eastern Russia. They are admirable troops, but some of their units lack munitions; and a large part of the eastern extent of the Siberian railroad is not under their control. The announced purpose of the allied expedition is merely to hold Vladivostok with a few thousand men as a base for the operations of the Czechoslovak forces, who are to do the real work of clearing out the Germans and Magyars and their allies. A disaster to any considerable body of Czechoslovaks, such as the two whose danger General HORVATH describes, would be a serious blow to the allied cause; it would hamper the actual work of clearing the Germans from Siberia, and it would very probably have a bad effect on allied prestige throughout Russia, and a correspondingly encouraging effect on the Germans. Since we are going in and thereby bringing about a sort of declaration of war by the Bolsheviki, we might as well go in hard enough to win; it is to be hoped that, with the recollection of the Serbian campaign as a warning, the Allies will not permit inadequacy of force to lead to a defeat whose moral effects might be serious.

BANKS READY FOR LIBERTY LOAN.

THE ANNALIST makes a calculation of the resources of all banks just as the Controller of the Currency makes a similar statement of the condition of the national banks. The resources of 28,111 banks total over forty billions, having increased from twenty-nine billions in 1916 by something over five billions in each of the two years 1916 and 1917. The Controller's statement refers especially to profits and soundness of condition. For the first half of 1918 the profits increased over last year $62,448,000, to 20 per cent. on the total capital of all national banks, surpassing all records. These unprecedented earnings have been accompanied by "a "radical reduction in interest rates "in all parts of the country, and the "practical extinction of the barbar-"ous usury which until recently was "being charged by some banks in "certain sections."

That the prosperity of the banks has not tempted their officers into unwise ventures appears from the fact that thus far in 1918 there has not been a single national bank failure. Only once has this record been equaled, and during the same time there were twenty-two failures of other banking institutions in fourteen States. During the year preceding the last statement of national banks, on June 29, their resources had increased $1,688,000,000, to nearly eighteen billions, or to a value exceeding that of all the gold mined in the world since the discovery of America. During that year deposits increased $1,249,000,000 and loans increased $808,000,000. It is apparent that the deposits are not of the sort which are created by the granting of loans to depositors and credits to them on the books of the banks. To the extent at least of the excess of the increase of deposits over loans, they must have been derived from the resources of depositors, that is from profits, or wages, or economies. It is not surprising that the holdings of Government bonds are over two billions. That is an increase of over a billion in a year, but a decrease of $540,738,000 since May 10, the date of the previous report. At that rate of decrease, the decks of the banks will be fairly well cleared for the next Liberty Loan in September.

It might be thought that this record of facts was good enough, but it is small compared with the theoretical capacity for expansion of the banks' activities. The reserves are so ample that if they were utilized as they might be our credit capacity might be called illimitable. It is certainly larger than the total of the Liberty Loans, including the forthcoming one. If the acceptance system and the Federal Reserve note issues were utilized by both national and State banks, credit inflation of some forty billions would be possible. This is stimulating to confidence because it is theoretical and is not being practiced. On the contrary, credit is being rationed as though it were scarce. There is no sign that either State or national banks are intoxicated by their strength. The country is passing from organization for peace to organization for war without strain, and with growth of confidence.

The dark spots are neither in the administration of the war nor of our finances, but in the operation of laws passed by those who sought to teach business to business. If the credit of the railways and the public utilities were equal to that of the banks and the industrials, the situation would be almost too good. Where the regulators have kept their hands off, there is nothing to be desired reasonably. But where the regulators have accomplished their ends, there Government help is necessary to preserve the solvency and services of activities essential to the winning of the war.

ALL BUT UNANIMOUS.

After many adjournments and some clanking of the Prussian sabre, the Finnish Diet has at last voted for a monarchy, some weeks after the German monarch had been selected in Berlin. This decision to make a kingdom out of a State which was once a Grand Duchy, and which the same Diet had declared a Republic no longer ago than last September, was put through by the vote of 58 of the Diet's 200 members. Ninety-eight others, including all but one of the 92 Socialists, had been ordered to stay away, after preliminary discussions had shown what they thought about the proposal.

But why did they spare the other 44 who voted against it in the final session? Either some parliamentary purist felt that it was necessary to have a quorum present or the 44 could not quite swallow a German monarchy when it came to the test. In either event, it shows how much actual support there is among the Finnish people for the course into which they have been forced by the Svinhufvud Government and the German army which that Government invited in.

TIME-WORN STATEMENTS.

Miss MARY GARRETT HAY, Chairman of the New York City Suffragist Party, says that "the open letter of the Wo-"men Voters' Anti-Suffrage Party to "President WILSON is a mere repeti-"tion of time-worn statements with-"out foundation, and deductions from "false premises." That is a convenient and a summary, if evasive, method of dodging unpleasant facts. The anti-suffragists, perplexed to find what the passage of the Federal Suffrage Amendment has to do with the war waged to make the world safe for democracy, dwell on the absolutely undemocratic methods of its advocates. "We have had enough of ap-"pealing to the individual voter with "a secret ballot," says Mrs. IDA HUSTED HARPER. "We propose to "force suffrage upon them through a "Federal amendment." "Legisla-"tures," says The Woman Voter, "are "more sensitive politically to party "dictation, party political debts, and "business interests than are the "voters."

Again and again the suffragists have shown their contempt for the individual voter, for the people. Thus the people of Nebraska, by a majority of ten thousand, said they did not want woman suffrage. Then the feminists wheedled the Legislature into passing a woman suffrage law. In North Dakota, Michigan, and Ohio the same falsification of the popular will, the same denial of democracy was manifested. Now the same ardent anti-democrats are trying to cajole or club Congress into passing this amendment to force woman suffrage upon various States against the will of their inhabitants. The best thing that the Anthonians can do is to cover up their tracks, try and make the country forget that they are not democrats but manipulators of small bodies of men, and take good pains not to answer unanswerable arguments.

BATTERY PARK.

Secretary BAKER was mistaken, of course, in saying that the War Department did not formally apply for the use of Battery Park, with the object of building thereon a big building or collection of buildings to be used for war purposes. The formal application was made, according to Mayor HYLAN and the Board of Estimate, on July 18 by Assistant Secretary of War CROWELL. There was no reason why Mr. BAKER should have known about the application; but one can't resist the impression, highly creditable to the Secretary's state of civilization, that he is glad to exculpate himself and the department, so far as he can, from the proposed spoliation of Battery Park.

On July 18 the War Department needed, or thought it needed immediately, 350,000 square feet for the combination, in one building or set of buildings, of all its activities in New York. Then a careful "survey" had shown that "the most available unoccupied space is in Battery Park." That is the crime of a park in the official mind. It is unoccupied space. It is waste. Cover it up. Build on it. And so that fine old greenery, that little waterside paradise, that playground of downtown, was to be condemned.

To an imperious necessity of war everything must yield. Why should it be an imperious necessity of war to commandeer Battery Park for five years or less, to cut down its trees, to cover it with buildings, to destroy its beauty, to spoil the holiday ground, the breathing spot, the seaside and health resort of thousands of New Yorkers; in fact, the most characteristically and genuinely Manhattanese of our parks, more than a park, a venerable, historical treasure and possession?

It wasn't. It isn't. There is plenty of unfilled space still accessible. Advices from Washington bring the news that the War Department has no plans to use the park immediately. Mr. CROWELL, fully conscious of the loss, "the sacrifice" which the city would consent to in allowing that unoccupied space to be occupied, at first said that "even if "the permission be granted, it will not "be taken advantage of if any other "solution of the situation can be "found." He added yesterday in reply to a telegram of protest: "I * * * "now expect to be able to make other "arrangements." His language and the attitude of the department were perfectly correct; but another solution can be found. Another solution has been found. Another solution can always be found. A park can always be spared and saved. Unfortunately, we must always keep on fighting for its salvation, because a considerable class of the community and all or most of Bumbledom habitually regard a park as a vacuum to be filled.

If the immediate desires of the War Department for office space have been satisfied, doubtless other needs will arise, and the usual enthusiasm to substitute beautiful things like brick and mortar for stupid things like grass and trees will be displayed again. Let us remember that Battery Park is not to be used by the War Department "if any other solution of the situation can be found." Another solution can always be found. It is never necessary, it never will be necessary, to sacrifice that park. A proposal to dispark a park is simply a product of mental laziness, or a result of the peculiar superstition that a park is a vacant lot.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

This Evil Really Is Serious. Complaints as to the quality of the mail service to and from the American Expeditionary Forces in France continue to be numerous—about as numerous, indeed, as are the soldiers on the other side and their relatives and friends in this country. Of these complaints, only a minute fraction come to what might be called public notice, in print or otherwise. If they were all published, the newspapers would have space for little else, and that the great majority of them never pass beyond narrow family circles is due, presumably, to the feeling on the part of most people that the Government is doing about the best it can in circumstances of enormous difficulty, and that, after all, it has more important things to do, just now, than to carry mail.

Such considerateness is commendable, of course, but the fact remains that it is the duty of the Post Office Department to solve the problem which the war has brought upon it, not to present excuses for not solving the problem, and while the Government has on its hands tasks that rank in importance above that of giving quick dispatch to soldier letters, it is not therefore justified in neglecting that one.

All the military authorities agree that to maintain the morale of the men in the field and of the civilians at home is as essential to success, to winning the war, as is keeping up the supply of ammunition and food at the front. They also agree that morale at both ends of the line is seriously affected when letters move with what seems to be unreasonable slowness and more than a few of them never arrive at all. Tales of American mail lying in France in "piles as large as a house," unsorted and unguarded, may be false, and probably are exaggerations. They may even be German propaganda in one of its innumerable forms. But such tales are believed, and they cause deep resentment. The very best refutation of them would be an immediate improvement of the mail service for both letters and newspapers.

Somebody Must Be Profiteering. In a time like this, when major woes so lamentably abound, there is only one excuse for talking about minor ills—it distracts the mind from too persistent contemplation of the big troubles, like taxes, pacifists, and submarines. Hence, and hence only, is there a sort of justification for a mournful ululation over the recent deterioration in the quality of matches, particularly those of the almost universally used kind called "safety."

Once, and not so long ago, these matches were good and cheap, no matter whence they came. When treated with judicious regard for their peculiarities, so nearly all of them would serve the intended purpose that even such a critic as Prometheus would have been forced to confess them worthy successors of himself as bringers of fire, and though they did sometimes break in the hands of the sex whose timidity prevents the holding of a match as it should be held when struck, men found them as close to perfection as reasonably could be expected in a world that never did run very strongly in that direction.

Now all is changed! The once respected safety match lives up to its name in only one respect—when it lights at all it is safe to go out unless guarded with tender and delicate care from the slightest of aerial currents. The persuasive something or other that formed a bridge for carrying flame from the head of a match to the wood behind it has either been omitted entirely in manufacture or so reduced in quantity that just expectations are disappointed with irritating frequency. A like economy has decreased the other something on the sides of the box to such an extent that, before it is more than half empty, if ignition is effected it is by muscular force, not chemical affinity.

If the cost of matches had gone down with the quality, the change would have been more easily tolerable, and there would be a less general indulgence in language of which the best that can be said is that it evidences early religious instruction. But it hasn't. These ersatz matches cost two or three times what the real matches did. Why?

A Noble Basis of Peace. There is an occasional gleam of almost human intelligence in the manifesto or appeal for an interparliamentary conference on peace which has just been issued by two Teutonic professors and a Hungarian Bishop. Some of its lines, that is, read as if they had been written by men who can see facts and reason about them much as do people living outside of the Central Empires. One cannot but notice in this document, however, the familiar premise to all German peace talk—in the interparliamentary conference nothing must be said by anybody about responsibility for the war, and there must be no attempt to fix on one or another nation the blame for beginning it.

There is no mystery in Germany's desire for this restriction on peace negotiations, but mysterious indeed is it that there should exist anywhere an expectation, or even a hope, that the past will be thus ignored by the victors in the war or that they will build the future on any other basis than just that past. To do so would be madness. Peace with wolves and other carnivora is not negotiated that way—never was and is not likely ever to be.

BATTERY PARK NOW.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The March drive of the would-be despotic spoilers of the velvety greensward, valuable trees, and restful landscape of Central Park, for the purpose of exhibiting war trenches, but which at the same time would have given an ocular demonstration of the wanton destruction of the Huns in their strategic retreats, was, by the foresight and vigorous assaults of THE TIMES and the accompanying heroic onslaughts of its nature-loving contributors, successfully repulsed, and our great city now enjoys that wondrous breathing spot in its undisturbed pristine loveliness.

And now another older, and perhaps more famous, certainly more historic, public park, resisting for centuries the encroachment of the waters of our wonderful harbor, seems destined to suffer the afflictions from which New Yorkers were graciously rescued in the case of the ruthless Spring drive.

Cannot some means be found to defeat this threatened spoliation of Battery Park, so replete with natural charm and historic associations?

It seems to me that if the Government is successful in diverting this oasis of New York's teeming millions, this playground and breathing spot of the humble toilers, to some purpose other than its original design, its success will be due almost entirely to the universal desire of the admirers of the President and his Administration to give him everything he, or it, asks for to help to win the war; and perhaps in great measure to the fear of the city's representatives, and the press, that if they hold back, or protest, at the spoliation, they will all be considered, and condemned, as foes of the President and, by the same token, friends of the Kaiser.

We have had during the present Administration many instances of the unalterable tenacity of the President and of some of his Cabinet to ideas emanating from them, which, to put it mildly, were not acceptable to the common sense and good taste of the people, but they were rushed through regardless of criticism or appeals of even the President's supporters. And I greatly fear that the inherent power of the Government may, in the case under discussion, prove to be the undoing of this beautiful, historic, and healthgiving park.

Now, if the surrender by New York of all her parks from the Battery to Spuyten Duyvil would surely win the war and restore to mankind "peace and good-will on earth," I doubt if there could be found one sane person who would not give them up freely. But I scarcely believe that one sane person could be found who believes that the surrender of Battery Park would contribute in any sense to actually winning the war. This might be a contributing element to that end if there were no other location for the housing of the workers required in the administrative departments to be transferred to this city. If there were no Battery Park at all, other quarters would be readily secured; so that Battery Park is not really necessary for the requirements of the transferred departmental activities. Other suitable and commodious quarters can be found, and this course should be pursued instead of tearing away from the loving protection of New York its "little ewe lamb" so dear to the weary and humble worker.

J. F. C. GROW.
Cranford, N. J., August 12, 1918.

"A Civic Calamity."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want heartily to indorse Miss Marbury's letter protesting against the use of Battery Park as a site for war offices until it has been conclusively demonstrated that no other place is available for such a purpose. Aside from the pity of obliterating such an advantageous recreation spot for the poor of lower New York, the appropriation of this park would be a civic calamity. Perhaps the men who are considering this step are unaware of what this park has meant and still means to the native New Yorker, to whom, like myself, Battery Park stands for so much that is to be cherished in the city's traditions. Since the days of New Amsterdam it has served to beautify the approach to the city, another point worthy of consideration. I earnestly hope that all lovers of their native city will make an effective protest against any unnecessary destruction of this historic spot.

Mrs. WILLIAM HARMAN BROWN.

An Appeal to the Mayor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I, an old New Yorker, am stirred to protest against this monstrous wrong, the meditated destruction of Battery Park.

Can no voices that will be listened to by the despoilers of that ancient park be raised on behalf of the inarticulate poor who have no place to go, if deprived of that refuge from the heat, but their fire escapes? Is the Mayor helpless to prevent? Does he want it to go down in history that this act of vandalism occurred while Hylan was Mayor of the city? If ever an act of legislation was needed it is now to prevent for all time the efforts constantly being made to place buildings in the open spaces of the city parks, thus curtailing the needs and infringing on the rights of the poor people for whom primarily the parks were made. The Spartan Spirit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following may be of interest in these times, copied from The Essex Gazette, Sept. 21, 1775:

> A gentleman who lately traveled through Connecticut met with an old gentlewoman, who told him that she had fitted out and sent five sons and eleven grandsons to Boston when she heard of the engagement between the provincials and regulars. The gentleman asked her if she did not shed a tear on parting with them? "No," said she. "I never parted with them with more pleasure." "But suppose," said the gentleman, "they had all been killed?" "I had rather," said the noble matron, "this had been the case than that one of them had come back a coward."

Such was the spirit of 1776, and it is doubtful if this mother ever heard of Sparta. HOWARD J. BANKER.

LEWIS RIDICULES WHITMAN'S SILENCE

Dares the Governor to Deny That He Is Receiving the Support of Hearst.

RAISES PROHIBITION ISSUE

Osborn Limits Himself to Two Pre-Primary Speeches, and Smith Will Make None.

Attorney General Merton E. Lewis accused Governor Whitman yesterday of dodging the issues of the primary campaign by keeping silent on the various questions in which he said the Republican voters were interested. He called upon the Governor particularly to explain his position regarding prohibition and agricultural legislation. He also dared the Governor to deny that he was receiving the support of William R. Hearst, and demanded again to know what the Governor had discussed with Arthur Brisbane, chief of the Hearst editorial forces, at a recent meeting at the Hotel St. Regis.

"It apparently is vacation time for Governor Whitman," commented Mr. Lewis. "He seems not to be working. Rarely during the last few weeks has the public heard anything from him. In other years the daily newspaper which did not carry a speech from Governor Whitman, delivered before some organization or society, was a curiosity. Doubtless his silence is due to the fact that this is campaign time. He is seeking a renomination, or perhaps I might better say a nomination, for a third term for the office of Governor.

"Apparently, too, the Governor feels that there is nothing of particular interest to be said in this campaign. He wants a renomination, and realizes that with the army of office holders at his command, devoted to his cause and dependent upon him for continuance in place, and for the opportunity of drawing their salaries from the public treasury, he can afford to remain silent. He probably realizes, or at least expects, that his Public Service Commissioners, ten in all at $15,000 a year, his Industrial Commissioners at $6,000 each, and Secretary to the commission at $6,000, together with his swarm of subordinates and subordinates of his subordinates, are entirely competent to deliver the votes of the enrolled Republican voters to him on primary day without the necessity on his part of explaining his views upon any subject.

Wisdom of Silence.

"Perhaps, too, the experience that he has had on the two occasions only when he has suffered himself to be quoted has taught him the unwisdom of saying things. In a half-hearted way he permitted himself to say for publication that he approved the interview given by his reputed manager, Congressman Cocks, who repudiated the support of Hearst's newspapers. This repudiation, it is understood, came near costing him the support of the papers. Mutual explanations and apologies were sufficient, doubtless, to bridge the threatening chasm between the Governor and Mr. Hearst. It will be noticed that Congressman Cocks has made no similar mistake.

"On the second occasion on which the Governor permitted himself to be quoted he offered an alibi for his Public Service Commission in New York City. The shuttle system had broken down, and hundreds of thousands of people had been discommoded and some of them injured. Commissioner Kracke repudiated the Governor's proffered alibi, and volunteered to assume his share of the responsibility for the defects in the plans of the shuttle system. The Governor, of course, was humiliated and annoyed both by the repudiation of the Hearst support by Congressman Cocks and by the repudiation of his alibi by Commissioner Kracke. Evidently he became discouraged, and has concluded that the less he may say in this campaign the better his chances of a nomination for a third term."

Mr. Lewis said the farmers would particularly like the Governor to appear before them at meetings, and justify his conduct in connection with agricultural legislation, for which he made himself the sponsor. One of the really important questions to be determined at the November election, Mr. Lewis said, was whether or not the Federal prohibition amendment should be ratified by the next Legislature without the submission of the question to the voters for approval. The Governor, he said, had gone on record in favor of such ratification, and against allowing the voters an expression of their will upon the subject.

"There is a large body of men and women enrolled Republicans, in this State," went on Mr. Lewis, "who do not agree with the Governor on this proposition and who would like him to give them his reasons for his attitude. On this subject, however, he is as silent as is the platform of the party adopted at the recent unofficial convention by county committees which the Governor himself controlled."

Mr. Lewis also thought the Governor ought to make his position clear regarding the question of restoring the official State convention system. He said that his own attitude regarding all these questions was fully known.

"There is one question to which the Governor has been frequently invited to reply and has thus far steadfastly refused," said Mr. Lewis. "What did Brisbane say to the Governor at their recent interview at the Hotel St. Regis? An answer to this question might go far toward excusing the Governor from declaring his views upon other questions. Does the Governor fear to take the people into his confidence and tell them precisely and explicitly what occurred on that occasion? His silence would indicate that he does."

Quotes the Kaiser on Hearst.

Returning to his attack upon William R. Hearst Mr. Lewis referred to the articles by Dr. Arthur N. Davis in The New York World in which the Kaiser is quoted as praising Mr. Hearst for what he printed in his newspapers.

"It appears from the affidavits submitted to the press of New York City yesterday that the Kaiser was right," said the Attorney General. "Bernstorff had been doing good work. He had been diligent in the performance of his duty. He had interviewed William Randolph Hearst on numerous occasions. He had spent hours with him at Mr. Hearst's apartment on Riverside Drive. The results of Count von Bernstorff's work were not only apparent to the American people but must have been communicated by the German Ambassador to his master in Berlin. 'Mr. Hearst,' said the Kaiser, 'is the only one, so far as I can find, who has revealed the real conditions and told the truth about them.' The Kaiser controlled Bernstorff, Bernstorff controlled Hearst, and Hearst controlled the Governor of the greatest State in the Union, Charles S. Whitman."

It was announced at the headquarters of William Church Osborn, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, that Mr. Osborn would not make more than three campaign speeches, two up-State and one in New York City. He has been invited to make an address at Ithaca. Mr. Osborn, who returned on Monday from a trip up-State, said the voters there were apparently apathetic to politics. He expects to receive strong support in the agricultural regions, and will make an appeal to the farmers in his campaign. He said he did not believe pressure was being brought to bear on the voters to vote against him in the primaries, but that he would have to break down the presumption that Alfred E. Smith was the official party candidate for Governor because of his designation at the recent unofficial Democratic Convention at Saratoga.

Mr. Smith returned to the City Hall yesterday from a week-end spent at his Summer home at Good Ground. Mr. Smith had a conference with State Chairman Edwin S. Harris and George Van Name, Secretary of the State Committee. He said he did not intend to make any speeches in the primary campaign, but would reserve all his energies for the fight against his Republican opponent.

Says Farmers Are for Osborn.

Mrs. Margaret Chanler Aldrich of Barrytown, N. Y., member of the up-State Women's Committee for William Church Osborn, in a statement yesterday said that Mr. Osborn was sure to get the farmer vote because the farmers all through the State knew what he had done for agriculture.

"Without gainsaying the numerous qualifications of Mr. Smith," she said, "it remains absolutely certain that 90 per cent. of the electors of New York State undoubtedly believe that Mr. Smith would be subservient to Mr. Murphy if elected. Mr. Smith, whose knowledge of farming apparently consists of his ability to pick a piece of Good Ground and to gather plums for the faithful, has little in common with the farmer. To up-State people there is a ready answer to Mr. Osborn's candidacy in the simple query, 'Would Osborn or would Smith have the better chance against the Republican nominee?'"

The Amerind Democratic Club of Elmhurst, L. I., at a meeting on Aug. 12 adopted resolutions unanimously indorsing the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith and the other candidates on the Democratic ticket.

RED CROSS WILL KNIT ON.

Atlantic Division Believes Order Has Been Misconstrued.

There is a general feeling throughout the city among those interested in war knitting that the order of the War Industries Board putting a stop to the manufacture of woolen or worsted hand knitting wools as announced from Washington in the morning papers was not intended to curtail the work of knitters working for the soldiers, but to cut out the knitting of the innumerable fancy sweaters that Summer girls are wearing in such numbers this year. An official statement issued yesterday by the Atlantic Division of the Red Cross, 44 West Twenty-third Street, said:

"The impression seems to have become general that the knitters of sweaters, socks, mufflers, &c., for American soldiers and sailors, too, will be suspended in the workrooms of the Red Cross as a result of a ruling by the War Industries Board. Although no official statement has been received here from the War Industries Board, the Atlantic Division is confident that the edict has been misconstrued. We believe that pending an inventory of the wool supply of the country allotments of wool will be held up, but that the board when it has determined the quantity which will be available will later make allotments in accordance with the plan previously announced. In the allotment of supplies by the board the Red Cross comes next to the army and navy.

"The Atlantic Division of the Red Cross has a limited supply of wool in its warerooms, and this with the quantity in the possession of the chapters will enable the Red Cross workrooms to turn out knitted goods for American fighting men for some weeks to come. We believe before this supply is exhausted the War Industries Board will have completed its inventory and made allotments, the Red Cross coming in for its share."

The Comforts Committee of the Navy League, at its headquarters, 405 Madison Avenue, announced yesterday that it had a sufficient supply of wool to go on knitting indefinitely. Miss May Burroughs and other members of the committee said that there was no chance of their being obliged to stop knitting.

CITY'S COAL IS HELD UP.

Market Commissioner Ordered 300,000 Tons, but Can't Get Any.

Not a single ton of the 300,000 tons of domestic sizes of anthracite coal contracted for by Market Commissioner onathan C. Day has reached this city, although the contract called for the beginning of delivery about Aug. 1. The Commissioner said yesterday that he can give no reason for the non-arrival of the coal, and he has as yet taken no steps to investigate.

It is a question whether the local or National Fuel Administrators looked with favor on Dr. Day's project. New York is assigned a certain quota of anthracite each month, and it is always a fight to get approximately that quota. Now the proposition of Dr. Day means, the fuel authorities say, that every ton of coal that comes in consigned to the city must be subtracted from the city's quota unless some other arrangement is made.

The local Fuel Administration, after advertising that each consumer was to order during the Summer months, apparently finds itself in the position of not being able to deliver the goods. In order to get a grasp on the situation State Fuel Administrator Cooke will meet the various County Administrators on Thursday. This meeting is of importance because out of it will grow the new State Administrator's plan for dealing with the situation not only now but during the cold months, when signs now point to another coal famine.

There is belief among some fuel administrators that some dealers are accumulating coal in their yards instead of passing it along to their customers. Apparently nothing can be done to make the dealers fill orders now.

THE CANDY ARMY.

"Sixty thousand men are engaged in making candy in the New England States."

Sixty thousand men are making candy—
Spending so their muscle, skill and speed,
Using so the fuel and the labor
All the farms and all the factories need;
Can't they sense the vastness of the hour?
Can't they hear their brothers calling "Come"?
Sixty thousand men just making candy,
And as many more just making gum!

Sixty thousand men still making candy—
While the streams of France are running red;
Using so the flour and the sugar
While the starving millions ask for bread;
Dabbling with the nuts and creams and chocolates,
While the tribes of earth have come to grips;
Dipping glacé fruits and shaping fondant,
When they might be making shoes or ships.

Sixty thousand men—a good-sized army—
Making candy on the brink of hell;
Filling bonbon dishes for their country
When they might be filling bombs and shell;
Wrapping caramels and packing nougat,
Wasting strength on piffling tasks like these,
While the mad Hun, drunk with blood and slaughter,
Beats the little nations to their knees.

Sixty thousand men still making candy!
Wake up, youths and maidens!—do your share;
Men are wounded, mutilated, blinded,
Men are dying for you, "over there."
Suffering? We have not glimpsed its meaning!
Sacrifice? We do not know its name!
Hunger? We have never felt its gnawing!
We are eating candy, to our shame.

Sixty thousand men just making candy,
In this world of misery and woe!
Can't we lessen luxuries a trifle?
Can't we let our little likings go?
Can't we see the vision and the struggle?
Can't we hear the nations crying, "Come"?
O America, stop eating candy!
O America, quit chewing gum!

PRESIDENT FAVORS DOCTORS' RESERVE

Approves Plan to Enroll Entire Profession in Corps for National Service.

MAJORITY NEEDED AT HOME

All Under 55 Years Subject to Call to Military Forces—Women Physicians Are Included.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Thousands of physicians not already commissioned in the army or the navy will be enrolled in the Volunteer Medical Service Corps, which has just been reorganized and enlarged. Under the supervision of the Council of National Defense the corps has been changed to include not only men who were not eligible for service either in the army or the navy, but all legally qualified physicians in the country, including women, who have not received commissions.

President Wilson has written a letter to Dr. Franklin Martin, Chairman of the Committee on Medicine and Sanitation, Council of National Defense, about the corps. The letter reads:

> The White House.
> Washington, Aug. 12, 1918.
> My Dear Mr. Martin: I have received your letter of Aug. 5, laying before me the matured plan for the reorganized Volunteer Medical Reserve Corps, of which you ask my approval. This work was undertaken by you under the authority of the Council of National Defense. It has had great success in enrolling members of the medical profession hroughout the country into a volunteer corps available to supply the needs of the army, navy, and Public Health Service.
> In co-operation with the General Medical Board of the Council of National Defense the strong governing board of the reorganized corps will be able to be of increasing service, and through it the finely trained medical profession of the United States is not only made ready for service in connection with the activities already mentioned, but the important work of the Provost General's office and Red Cross will be aided, and the problems of the health of the civilian communities of the United States assured consideration.
> I am very happy to give my approval to the plans which you have submitted, both because of the usefulness of the Volunteer Medical Service Corps, and also because it gives me an opportunity to express to you, and through you to the medical profession, my deep appreciation of the splendid service which the whole profession has rendered to the nation with great enthusiasm from the beginning of the present emergency.
> The health of the army and navy, the health of the country at large, is due to the co-operation which the public authorities have had from the medical profession; the spirit of sacrifice and service has been everywhere present, and the record of the mobilization of the many forces of this great Republic will contain no case of readier response or better service than that which the physicians have rendered.
> Cordially and faithfully yours,
> WOODROW WILSON.

Dr. Franklin Martin, the Advisory Commission, Council of National Defense.

"This is a method of recording all physicians who are not yet in service and classifying them so that their services, when required, will be utilized," said Dr. Martin. "It is a method by which every physician not in uniform will be entitled to wear insignia which will indicate his willingness to serve his Government.

"More than 60 per cent. of the physicians of the country will be utilized in caring for the industries at home, and this percentage will be expected to continue their ordinary professional work."

The physicians are grouped in four classes. The first comprises those under 40 who are physically fit for active service; the second comprises reserves under 55 who are to be called on for army, navy, and civilian service when necessary; the third comprises home forces over 55 who are able to do only civilian work.

"UNCLE JOE" NEAR RECORD.

Another Term Will Give Him 44 Years' Service in Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—If the voters of the eighteenth Illinois district elect "Uncle Joe" Cannon for a twenty-second term in Congress next November, he will have equalled a record achieved by only one other in point of congressional service. Already the former speaker has out-served all other present and former members of the House for long service in that body. The late William Boyd Allison, former representative and later senator from Iowa, held a record in Congress with forty-four years' service in both Houses.

Mr. Cannon's record is for service in the House alone. One more term would complete a service of forty-four years. Were it not for an affair in 1890, when the Democrats took control of the House, following a passage of the McKinley tariff law, and another incident of 1912, when the Progressives split the Republican vote, Mr. Cannon's service would have been for twenty-four terms, (forty-eight years. As it is he began his service in 1873 and has served since with the exception of the two terms mentioned.

Besides Mr. Cannon and the late Senator Allison, Justin Morrill of Vermont, late representative and senator, is among the former members who saw long service in Congress. Mr. Morrill served forty-three years continuously as a representative and later as a senator.

Mr. Cannon's first term was in the forty-third Congress. He was first elected speaker in the fifty-eighth Congress and re-elected in the fifty-ninth, sixtieth and sixty-first sessions.

LUXURY TAXES IN ENGLAND.

Committee's Schedule Includes Jewelry, Clothing, and Art Objects.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—A report issued by the Luxury Tax Committee recommends that, whatever the price paid for them, a tax should be levied on jewelry, precious stones, silk, velvet, fur clothing, perfumes, cosmetics, yachts, pleasure boats, motor cars, pictures, sculptures, curios, antiques, pianos, and other musical instruments, billiard tables, field and opera glasses, liquors and cordials.

It is recommended also that a tax be paid on meals, for accommodations in hotels, clubs, chambers and apartments, when specified prices are exceeded, and on clothing above certain prices. For men's shoes £2 will be allowed to be paid, and for women's shoes 35 shillings. Other prices arranged are: For men's hats, 18 shillings; for women's hats, 35 shillings; eight guineas for men's suits and seven guineas for women's costumes.

Articles for personal use also are to be taxed, as well as household furniture above certain prices, 50 guineas being the limit set for suite furniture.

There will be a tax on thoroughbred horses valued at about 150 guineas, and on dogs valued at above £5. Bicycles costing more than £15 will be taxed, as also will be articles used in sports and games, books published before 1800, and books in luxury binding.

The proposed tax is a wide one, embracing such things as rent paid for fishing and shooting rights or purchase of live game. Exemption is to be made when works of art are purchased for museums, art galleries or public libraries. There is to be no tax on medical, surgical or dental appliances or on the first sale of the work of an artist made by himself, except portraits exceeding £120.

NEW DRAFT BILL READY FOR SENATE

Committee Accepts Age Extension, 18 to 45, as a Military Necessity.

'WORK OR FIGHT' CHANGE

Provision Made for Educating Boy Veterans—Bill Will Add 3,000,000 to Army—Its Full Text.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Yielding to the war emergency, the Senate Military Affairs Committee, in completing today its redraft of the Man Power bill, voted to make the age limit from 18 to 45 years. Senator Chamberlain, as Chairman, explained that the committee, "because of military necessity," had approved the expansion urged by the Secretary of War.

The Man Power bill is now ready for action by the Senate, and will be offered by Senator Chamberlain when that body reconvenes next Monday. Word reached the Capitol today from enough absentees to assure the necessary working quorum.

The bill, as recast by the committee, differs in few particulars from the draft submitted by the Secretary of War. One amendment, offered by Senator Reed of Missouri and adopted as part of the exemption clause, stipulates that any one in the exempt or deferred class who fails to continue at work when physically able to do so shall become subject to the draft, under regulations to be promulgated by the President.

Another amendment accepted provides against disqualifying the wife of a soldier or sailor serving in the war from holding a Government position. Under another amendment soldiers and sailors under 21, after being discharged from service, may avail themselves of educational instruction at the expense of the Government for a period equal to their time of service, but not to exceed two years.

Under the new draft ages it is unofficially calculated that approximately 3,000,000 additional men will be called to the colors, making America's available fighting force more than 5,000,000 in 1919. The War Department's scheme, it is understood, would be to have an army of approximately 3,000,000 men in France next year, with the balance held in camps in this country, ready to be transported in the event of emergency.

Final Text of Draft Bill.

Here is the bill as completed:

"A BILL

"To amend Sections 2, 4, and 5 of an act entitled 'An Act to Authorize the President to Increase Temporarily the Military Establishment of the United States,' approved May 18, 1917, and for other purposes.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the second sentence of Section 2 of the act entitled 'An Act to Authorize the President to Increase Temporarily the Military Establishment of the United States,' approved May 18, 1917, be, and hereby is, amended to read as follows:

"'Such draft as herein provided shall be based upon liability to military service of all male citizens and male persons residing in the United States, not alien enemies, who have declared their intention to become citizens, between the ages of 18 and 45, both inclusive, and shall take place and be maintained under such regulations as the President may prescribe, not inconsistent with the terms of this act; provided, that the President may draft such persons liable to military service in such sequence of ages and at such time or times as he may prescribe; and provided further, that a citizen or subject of a country neutral in the present war who has declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States shall be relieved from liability to military service upon his making a declaration, in accordance with such regulations as the President may prescribe, withdrawing his intention to become a citizen of the United States, which shall operate and be held to cancel his declaration of intention to become an American citizen, and he shall forever be debarred from becoming a citizen of the United States.'

"2. That the provision of Section 4 of said act, (the draft exemption clause,) 'persons engaged in industries, including agriculture, found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment, or the effective operation of the military forces, or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency,' be, and hereby is, amended to read as follows:

"'Persons engaged in occupations or employments found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment, or the effective operation of the military forces, or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency, provided that, when any person shall have been placed in a deferred or exempted class for any of the reasons in this paragraph set forth, he shall not be entitled to remain therein unless he shall in good faith continue, while physically able to do so, to work at and follow such occupation, employment, or business, and if he fails so to do shall again become subject to the draft; the President shall make regulations for enforcing this provision.'

"3. That Section 4 of said act be amended by adding at the end thereof the following proviso:

"'Provided, that nothing in this section contained shall prevent the President, if he deems it advisable, from appointing as a member of a local board any person residing outside the subdivision or area in which such local board has jurisdiction, or from transferring a member of one local board to another local board outside the subdivision or area in which such person resides.'

"4. That Section 5 of said act be, and hereby is, amended to read as follows:

"'That all male persons between the ages of 18 and 45, both inclusive, shall be subject to registration in accordance with regulations to be prescribed by the President, and upon proclamation by the President or other public notice given by him or by his direction stating the time or times and place or places of any such registration, it shall be the duty of all persons of the designated ages, except officers and enlisted men of the regular army, the navy, and the National Guard and Naval Militia while in the service of the United States, to present themselves for and submit to registration under the provisions of this act; and every such person shall be deemed to have notice of the requirement of this act upon the publication of any such proclamation or any such other public notice as aforesaid given by the President or by his direction; and any person who shall willfully fail or refuse to present himself for registration or to submit thereto as herein provided shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction in a District Court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year and shall thereupon be duly registered; Provided, that in the call of the docket precedence shall be given, in courts trying the same, to the trial of criminal proceedings under this act:

"'Provided, further, that persons shall be subject to registration as herein provided who shall have attained their eighteenth birthday and who shall not have attained their forty-sixth birthday on or before the day set for the registration in any such proclamation by the President or any such other public notice given by him or by his direction, and all persons so registered shall be and remain subject to draft into the forces hereby authorized unless exempted or excused therefrom as in this act provided; provided, further, that the President may at such intervals as he may desire from time to time request all male persons who have attained the age of 18 years since the last preceding date of registration and on or before the next date set for registration by proclamation by the President, except such persons as are exempt from registration hereunder, to register in the same manner and subject to the same requirement and liabilities as those previously registered under the terms hereof; and provided, further, that in the case of temporary absence from actual place of legal residence of any person liable to registration as provided herein, such registration may be made by mail under regulations to be prescribed by the President.'

"The wife of a soldier or a sailor serving in the present war shall not be disqualified for any position under the Government because she is a married woman.

"Soldiers and sailors, regardless of age, shall, when they are accepted as volunteers or when they shall have been drafted, be eligible to receive commissions in either th army or the navy. They shall likewise be eligible for admission to officers' schools under such rules and regulations as may be adopted for entrance to such schools, and shall not be barred from or discriminated against on account of age.

"Any persons under the age of 21 who shall have been accepted as a volunteer or who shall have been drafted and served in the army or navy, shall be entitled, at the conclusion of the present war, to receive an education at the expense of the United States Government at approved educational institutions; the period of education shall be equivalent in point of time to the period by him served in the army or navy, but shall not exceed two years. Application for such educational privilege shall be made within six months after discharge, and the applicant shall promptly begin his studies after his application shall have been approved. Rules and regulations for carrying out this provision shall be promulgated by the President."

Enactment Called Essential.

In explaining the reasons for expanding the draft ages, Senator Chamberlain said:

"The Secretary of War, the Chief of Staff, and General Crowder have appeared before the committee on this bill. They have shown to the committee's satisfaction that its enactment is absolutely essential to the maintenance of an adequate army in France.

"While there are members of the committee and other Senators who regret the necessity of reducing the draft age limit so as to include young men of 18 years of age, still they will support the measure because of military necessity. It is a time when all must make sacrifices in flesh and blood, as well as in treasure, and the sooner an adequate army can be placed on the battlefront of Europe the sooner will our country be able to avoid future and greater sacrifices.

"Under the terms of the bill the President will have the power to classify those selected, and, while I have no information to indicate what he will do, I am inclined to the opinion that classes will be arranged so as to call the youngest class last, so that men of that class will have at least six months or a year to remain in the United States, and possibly longer, depending upon the emergency.

"It is my purpose to have the bill taken up next Monday, and the initial steps with this end in view will be taken when the Senate convenes day after tomorrow. I think the committee amendments adopted today have improved the bill."

FORBIDS SELLING SHIPS TO FOREIGNERS

Recent Amendments to Federal Law Put Into Effect by Presidential Proclamation.

Special to The New York Times.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Through a Presidential proclamation issued today, foreigners will henceforth be unable to obtain control of American shipping or shipyards. The proclamation puts into effect the recent amendment to the Shipping Act. Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the Shipping Board, made the following explanation:

"The new act provides that during war or national emergency proclaimed by the President it is a criminal offense to sell, mortgage, lease or deliver an American ship to a foreigner, without the consent of the Shipping Board, or to make any agreement by which control of a ship is turned over to a foreigner. The prohibition applies not only to completed ships, but to ships under construction.

"It is also made illegal, without the Board's consent, to make any contract for ship construction for foreign account, unless the contract expressly provides that construction of the ship shall not begin until after the war or emergency has ended. Shipyards cannot be transferred to foreigners without the consent of the Shipping Board."

There are provisions in the act which will prevent all attempts to evade the ship-transfer sections of the law by means of dummy directors and stockholders in corporations nominally American but actually dominated by foreigners, Mr. Hurley said.

Eastern shipbuilders will meet next Tuesday in Philadelphia at the request of Mr. Hurley to speed the merchant fleet now being turned out in Eastern yards. Special efforts probably will be made to have the wooden shipbuilders increase their work.

OVERSEAS SERVICE CONCERT

May Peterson Sings at a Recital for Y. M. C. A. in Aeolian Hall.

More than a thousand members and friends of the Y. M. C. A. Overseas Service were guests at a recital last evening in Aeolian Hall, where the list of volunteers was headed by May Peterson of the Metropolitan Opera. It was announced that Miss Peterson had asked to sing, as she has two brothers in the service, one about to sail and the other already over there. The audience, on her first appearance, sprang up to greet her, and after her songs, which Francis Moore accompanied, "Annie Laurie" and an old negro spiritual, "It's Me That's Needin' Prayer," there were encores.

There were other familiar names on the program, when Dion Kennedy and Frank Banta put on the great organ records of Ernest Schelling in Pirani's variations on "America" and Chopin's A-flat polonaise, as well as an Arensky waltz recorded by Gabrilowitsch and Harold Bauer, and in conclusion some popular war pieces, the "Long, Long Trail," "Our Allies," and "Keep the Home Fires Burning." The Y. M. C. Former Director of Physical Training in New York Schools, Expires in Maine Camp.

NOTED FOR HIS LECTURES

He Recently Returned from France, Where He Made a Moral Survey of Expeditionary Forces.

SOUTH CASCO, Me., Aug. 13.—Dr. Luther Halsey Gulick, educator and author, of New York, died at his camp here today. He was 52 years old.

Dr. Gulick was born in Honolulu, H. I., and was educated at Oberlin College, Harvard, and New York University. He was recognized as an authority upon physical training in the public schools and the author of many books on this subject. A series of lectures at the St. Louis Exposiion in 1904 won him international recognition as an expert in such matters. He was Chairman of the International Committee on Physical Recreation of the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. until he had to give it up on account of his health.

Dr. Gulick held a large number of important positions and took part in a number of movements looking to the development of the physical being. He was physical director of the Y. M. C. A. at Jackson, Mich., in 1886, and from that year until 1903 he was Superintendent of the Department of Physical Training of the Y. M. C. A. at Springfield, Mass., and while there was one of the originators of the game of basket ball. Dr. Gulick recently returned from France, where he made a moral survey of the American Expeditionary Force for the Y. M. C. A. The funeral will be held in Springfield, Mass., next Thursday.

COURT ACTION HALTS GAS PRICE INCREASE

Justice Benedict Believes That Hughes Erred in Some of His Opinion as Referee.

The move of the gas companies to raise the price of gas to $1.25 met with a setback yesterday when Justice Benedict of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn decided to issue an injunction permanently restraining the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company from charging more than 95 cents for gas in the Thirty-first Ward of the Borough of Brooklyn until it has been established by proceedings before the Public Service Commission that a higher rate had been rendered reasonable, lawful, and necessary.

"I have carefully read the opinion of Judge Hughes," declared Justice Benedict, "and although I have great respect for his legal ability as well as for his many other qualifications, I cannot agree with some of his conclusions. I believe he has fallen into error, which, in a carefully prepared opinion, I will point out, and also for what reasons I disagree with him."

Justice Benedict indicated that he would hand down an opinion within a day or two. He intimated that a decision rendered by the Court of Appeals in the case of the Municipal Gas Company of Albany had been improperly applied by the referee to the Brooklyn Gas Company case.

Assistant Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien urged that the court designate a depository for the money collected by the company over the eighty-cent rate pending the outcome of the appeal which the city intended to take from the referee's decision. The court declined to grant the requested relief.

The injunction which Justice Benedict said he would grant will act as a stay until October at least. Mr. Thompson said he would appeal, but action can hardly take place for two months, as the Appellate Division is on recess.

In an opinion submitted to the Public Service Commission for approval yesterday, Commissioner F. J. H. Kracke accused all the gas companies of Greater New York, with the exception of the Queens Borough Gas and Electric Company, of being responsible for the poor candle power of gas furnished to the consumers last Winter, by failing to have sufficient supplies of coal and gas oil to last through the unusual demands of the Winter.

Commissioner Kracke presented fourteen recommendations which he urged upon the gas companies as precautionary measures against a recurrence of last Winter's conditions.

The recommendations made by Commissioner Kracke include the following: Two months' supply of coal on hand beginning Oct. 1; two months' supply of oil; additional equipment for the Brooklyn Borough and the New York and Richmond Gas Companies; repairs by the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, and enlargements of its oil storage tanks; repairs by the Kings County Lighting Company so as to secure an adequate and continuous supply of gas; an educational campaign by the gas companies to teach the proper use of gas in the Winter season; the use of mantles instead of open burners; the use of pulmotors on gas emergency wagons of all companies, and covering to protect the gas pipes against freezing in exposed places.

NEW MILEAGE BOOKS READY NEXT WEEK

Good on All Roads at 3 Cents a Mile—Freight Rate Revision Continues.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Passenger mileage books, interchangeable and good on any railroad, will be placed on sale a week from today. They will be accepted in payment of passenger fares on trains, in exchange for tickets and for extra baggage charges. Two books are being prepared—one with 1,000 coupons, each coupon worth 3 cents or one mile of travel, to be sold for $30, with the addition of $2.40 war tax collected when the book is bought, and another with 500 coupons, selling for $15, with $1.20 additional war tax.

Each book is to be transferable and may be used for any number of passengers at the same time. Travelers may present these books to conductors on trains if they wish, but are advised to have the mileage script exchanged for tickets between points where there are long and short routes in order to gain advantage of the shortest distance and lowest charge.

Railroad Administration officials decided not to make the mileage script acceptable for Pullman charges because the war tax on berths or parlor car seats is 10 per cent. or 2 per cent. higher than on passenger fares. This would have complicated the collection of war taxes.

Freight rate revisions to be made continuously by the Railroad Administration in the future will be ordered on the principle that the railroads should remove fundamental injustices and not only the inequalities and new differentials arising out of the 25 per cent. rate advance.

This plan, explained today by Director General McAdoo, means that thousands of shippers are free to protest to the Railroad Administration's Traffic Committee against systems of rates in effect before the Government took charge of the railways, and to press their claims for adjustments which will remove discriminations favoring competing localities or plants. Rate experts admit the existence of innumerable cases of discrimination which business interests have not brought to the attention of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This policy of the Railroad Administration is also considered as significant as leading eventually to establishment of rate systems on a scientific rather than competitive basis.

PROVES HE'S NOT A LOAFER.

Relative of Roosevelt Shows He Has a Job and a Draft Card.

Charles Leaycraft, 23 years old, of Caldwell, N. J., a second cousin of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who was arrested while sitting on a bench in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, on July 23, appeared in the Gates Avenue (Brooklyn) Court yesterday armed with evidence that he was not a loafer, as the police charged. He has been at liberty on bond furnished by the National Surety Company since his first arraignment.

Exhibits A and B were papers from the Crucible Steel Company of New Jersey, where Leaycraft is employed, and registration and classification records from his local draft board, the latter of which shows that he was placed in Class 5G because of a weak heart.

"When arrested last month," said Leaycraft after the charge against him was dismissed, "I was returning home from Oyster Bay, where I had taken my mother to visit Colonel Roosevelt, her first cousin."

FREIGHTER AGROUND IN FOG

Ship Sticks on Sandy Bottom and Floats Off with Tide.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 13.—A Brazilian freight steamer, laden with sugar, ran aground on the New England coast in a heavy fog today. The tide was receding at the time and observators believed the vessel to be in a dangerous position. One report was that the steamer was evading a German submarine.

Coast guardsmen who went aboard refused to say how the Captain explained being so far off his course. The vessel, they said, was resting on a sandy bottom about 1,500 feet from shore. She formerly was of German register, taken over by the Brazilian Government when that country entered the war.

Later the steamer floated without assistance and proceeded on her way, apparently undamaged.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts, 11,156 packages. Trading rather quiet today, but fancy butter is held firmly and on medium and low grades there is still a good deal of confidence shown. EGGS.—Receipts, 18,271 cases. The market is quiet. High grades of heat-free fresh eggs are very scarce and any lots that show enough of such to attract the better class of trade are promptly salable at firm prices. The accumulations are wearing down gradually, but are still large and being pressed for sale at any reasonable offers. Some very inferior goods, badly hatched and heated, have sold as low as $8 a case, and other sales range about from that price downward, according to quality and condition. Nearby white eggs very scarce in the highest grades, and such are cleaning up at firm prices; defective stock of widely irregular value. Fresh gathered extras, per dozen, 47@48c; regular packed extra firsts, 44@46c; regular packed firsts, 40@43c; seconds, 37@39c; inferior, 27@36c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 35@36c; No. 2 and poorer, 26@34c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 31@33c; under grades, 25@30c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 60@62c; ordinary to prime, 48@58c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 45@58c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 42@52c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 50@52c, gathered brown and mixed colors, 38@48c; refrigerator firsts, 41@42c.

Tailless Ermine Is Used.

Many novel treatments are seen in the high-grade fur garments produced here for Fall and Winter wear. One of these is a cape of tailless ermine, soft, the "snowy" effect produced by the omission of the tails being particularly attractive. It is cut something in the form of a shawl, and with the longest part in the centre, it drops from the shoulders well to the bottom of the skirt of the wearer. It is drawn in front at the waistline, and graceful folds are joined on either side, with openings for the arms.

Gray Goods Demand Fair.

There was a fair movement to gray goods in this market yesterday, not a little of which was due to the selling of considerable low-count Eastern printcloths, for deliveries running through this and next month, at prices subject to Government revision. Most of the "regular" printcloth and sheetings business was done by second hands, the mills apparently being unwilling or unable to trade for deliveries this side of October. Second hands sold spot 39-inch 68-72s at 18½ cents, and similar deliveries of 5 and 5.50-yard sheetings were sold by them at 14½ and 13½ cents, respectively.

Sateens Run Into a Slump.

Reports were current in the local market for gray goods yesterday that sateens and other special cloths used by the men's clothing trade have run into a slump, so far as demand is concerned. Two theories are given for it. One is that the manufacturers of clothing, facing the deficit in sales made probable by several million men soon being in khaki as a result of the extended draft, are unwilling to trade beyond what they consider a safety point. The other is that the Government is so slow in letting out wool for future civilian use that these men are holding off until they can be assured of getting wool goods from which to make up their garments, with the same result as to sateens. It is said that makers of these cloths are not worried, as there is plenty of work to be done for the Government in the shape of twills and other fabrics.

Silks to be Scarce for Spring?

Predictions are made in several quarters of the local silk trade that these fabrics are going to be scarcer than ever for Spring, for which a number of reasons are given. One of these is that the dyers and throwsters are operating with a labor deficit of 15 to 20 per cent., which makes production slow from those sources, and a second is that the mills are short on several kinds of help, including weavers. One of the principal reasons advanced, however, was the great and continued popularity of crêpes, which are notoriously slow in production. Not only are silks for crêpes slow in throwing because of the great number of turns per inch that the threads have to be given, but it is said that in weaving the necessary use of two shuttles, one containing right-hand and the other left-hand twist, brings them off the looms much more slowly than the average silk fabric.

New Color Card Is Out.

Compilers of the color card issued by the Textile Color Card Association for the Spring season have apparently outdone all their previous efforts, with the result that those who have seen it think very well of it. A range of forty-four colors is contained in the card, and of these thirty-four are new. The old shades carried over are champagne, carnation, peony, coral, Bermuda, cherry, American Beauty, bark, marine, and navy No. 2. The leading basic shades of the new card are blue and red. Most of the colors selected have a real "Springy" look, which adds to its attractiveness. The card has been issued some time in advance of the expected arrival of the new French color forecasts.

McCook Estate All to Widow.

The estate of Anson G. McCook, lawyer, who died Dec. 28 last, was appraised yesterday at $347,576, of which $84,390 was the value of 500 shares of the New York Law Journal Company. Mr. McCook left the entire estate to his wife, Hettie B. McCook. The report shows that the stock in the Law Journal was worth $168.78 a share, the par value being $100. The paper has made net profits of about $50,000 a year since 1910 except in 1915, when the net profits, due chiefly to legal advertisements of the many foreclosure suits brought in that year, were $83,115. The corporation paid 14 per cent. dividends.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

List Strong and Fairly Active, with Rails Making Further Progress.

Whether the conference to be held this morning in Washington, at which Secretary McAdoo will give bankers and railroad executives an opportunity to explain their objections to the form of the proposed railroad contract as it now stands will be productive of any important modification in the terms is doubtful, since the Director General has had ample opportunity to consider the changes desired and presumably has made up his mind as to their merits, but it is a promise of early action in the settlement of a vexatious matter which has hurt railway credit to a serious degree. The prospect of a decision leading to the closing of a standard agreement which, on the whole, is much more favorable to the carriers than the original draft, was sufficient to give a further stimulus to the rails yesterday. Few issues benefited to the extent that Norfolk & Western did, with a maximum advance of 3⅜ and a net gain for the day of 2½ points, but most of the carriers showed fractional advances and there was a substantial increase in the volume of investment buying.

The tone of the list as a whole was stronger, aided by the rapidly improving military position of the Allies, though the money market continues to exert a check on speculative dealing. Steel sold above Monday's prices throughout most of the session and there was a marked demand for some of the specialties.

A cable yesterday from Peking announcing the arrangement of a Japanese loan of 80,000,000 yen to the Chinese Government proved puzzling to bankers who have been discussing with State Department officials the matter of a $50,000,000 advance by the reconstituted four-power group. If the Japanese loan has been effected it was undoubtedly closed before the beginning of the negotiations now under way, to which Japan is a party, but it is likely none the less to offer new obstacles to the friendly efforts of this Government to interest American investors in Chinese bonds. The bankers have not taken the initiative in the pending plan, and as a matter of fact have been reluctant to take up the project while so many demands are being made upon the investment market for war purposes.

Interest in the President's appointments to fill the vacancies left in the Federal Reserve Board by the withdrawal of Paul M. Warburg and F. A. Delano is keen in financial circles. It was reported yesterday that Franklin Q. Brown of Redmond & Co. of this city and E. D. Hulbert, President of the Merchants Loan & Trust Company of Chicago are being considered favorably. Mr. Brown has taken an active part in arranging railroad financing since the Government took over control of the carriers, in the course of which work he has been closely associated with John Skelton Williams.

LONDON MARKET STEADY.

Victories and Large American Forces Are Favorable Influences.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The tone of the Stock Exchange today was optimistic owing to the war news, which included further buying of low-priced shares. South African land shares were well supported and steady support also was given gilt-edged securities. Russians were strong in spots but Spanish bonds reacted five points.

The hardening in the New York cable transfer was attributed to the effect of the influx of American troops in Europe. The movement of French exchange to a more normal level was partly due to the same reason and indicates the soundness of the allies' financial condition.

GOLD MINING ESSENTIAL.

First Definite Ruling on Industry by the Priorities Board

RENO, Nev., Aug. 13.—The first definite statement to come from the Priorities Board classifying the gold mining industry as an essential war industry, was received this morning by the Resolutions Committee of the American Gold Conference from Edwin B. Parker, Priorities Commissioner. The statement was as follows:

"The following resolution was adopted by the Priorities Board:

"'It has been resolved by the Priorities Board that gold mining is an essential war industry, and the powers of this board be so exercised as to accord to such industry preferential treatment in the supply, not only of tools, machinery, and equipment, but in the transportation service, fuel, and labor supply.'"

The resolutions presented to the conference this morning calling for a Government bonus for gold production will be taken up and discussed tomorrow morning by the conference.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Prices were steady on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 61 francs 95 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs. Five per cent. loan, 87 francs 65 centimes. The official quotations for dollar exchange declined another centime, being quoted at 5.64¼ to 5.69¼.

The hearing was requested some time ago by the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities. The association will be represented at the hearing by their counsel, Samuel Untermyer and B. H. Inness Brown. The Railway Executives' Advisory Committee will also be represented at the hearing by their counsel, A. P. Thom and C. W. Bledsoe.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Foreign Bonds Advance.

Favorable war news was reflected yesterday in the market for foreign Government securities. New high records for the year were scored in the case of the American Foreign Securities 5s, which advanced to 98, the Anglo-French 5s which moved up to 95, the City of Lyons 6s, which sold up to 95 and the French Government 5½s which touched 99. The Russian bonds were also higher, the external 6½s advancing to 58.

Increased Stock Depresses Price.

The decline of Galena Signal Oil shares in the outside market for some days past has reflected apparently the increase which has occurred in the amount of stock outstanding. Opening on Monday morning around 118, selling pressure carried the price yesterday down to a bid of 100 and an offered quotation at the close of 110. Stockholders recently authorized an increase in the common stock from $12,000,000 to $20,000,000 and created a new preferred stock issue of $8,000,000. In acquiring control of properties in Texas, $2,000,000 of the new preferred and $4,000,000 new common were issued in payment, and $4,000,000 preferred is being offered to stockholders at par. A few months ago the stock sold as high as 140 a share.

Tobacco Products Gains Ground.

Tobacco Products was one of the industrial issues to reflect particularly an inflow of buying orders yesterday and at 72 scored a new high price on the current movement. The shares have not lacked for advertising as a result of the largely expanded demand for cigarettes for the military forces, and this, with larger earnings, has made an impression on speculators.

California Petroleum Income.

The balance for dividends, amounting to $871,771, which was earned by the California Petroleum Corporation in the half year ended June 30 was equal to more than 7.60 per cent. on the preferred stock. The company's statement, issued yesterday, indicated, however, that no reservation for Federal war taxes had been made before the balance was arrived at. Gross earnings amounted to $1,819,253, and the balance-sheet indicated a favorable position for the company, working capital being nearly $2,000,000. The current assets of $2,777,000 were more than three times as large as current liabilities.

Treasury Certificates.

Subscription books to the fourth series of Treasury certificates of indebtedness, issued in anticipation of the Fourth Liberty Loan closed yesterday. It is understood that the banks and trust companies in the New York District oversubscribed their $169,600,000 quota of the $500,000,000 offered, but officials of the Federal Reserve Bank declined to give out any information.

Cotton Spots and Futures.

There is, as local cotton men yesterday pointed out, support for the belief advanced at yesterday's Government hearing, that the disparity between spot and future prices for cotton is largely due to the Government's insistence upon high grades in its orders, in the fact that since its specifications were revised, the general tendency, now without marked temporary exceptions, has been toward lessened discrepancy between the two markets. An explanation not dwelt upon, but sometimes mentioned, is the fact that this year and last, for the first time in many years, the cotton market is dominated by the sellers rather than the buyers.

RESERVE BOARD SECRETARY

J. A. Broderick Named to Take the Place of Willis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—J. A. Broderick, examiner of Federal Reserve banks, has been appointed Secretary of the Federal Reserve Board to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. H. Parker Willis, to become Professor of Banking in Columbia University.

Mr. Broderick was formerly connected with the banking department of the State of New York. He introduced a system of foreign exchange department examinations that has proved of value. While engaged on this work he went to Europe and was the first American official to examine banking branches abroad.

In 1912 Mr. Broderick organized the Credit Bureau of the New York State Banking Department. He is a member of the New York Credit Men's Association.

COTTON MEN TESTIFY AT FEDERAL HEARING

Contend That Government's Demand for High-Grade Product Causes Disparity in Prices.

An informal public hearing was held yesterday in the board room of the New York Cotton Exchange by C. J. Brand of the Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture, which some time ago ordered an investigation into the subject of cotton prices, with particular reference to the disparity which has prevailed during this and the last season between the price for cotton on the spot and the price of contracts for future delivery of cotton. This disparity has been the subject of considerable complaint both by manufacturers and cotton growers, the former complaining that it has handicapped them in securing their supplies, and the latter that it is prejudicial to the marketing of their crop.

"The investigation is not, of course, limited to the local exchange," said Mr. Brand. "The complaints against exchanges have been very acute recently, especially in the South. Nothing revolutionary is contemplated, but we are looking for a basis of facts on which to recommend reforms."

Walter L. Johnson, President of the New York Exchange, then explained the qualifications of membership. Mr. Brand asked if floor dealers, who afterwards began to carry contracts for their own account, were required to inform the Exchange of this addition to their regular brokerage business. Mr. Johnson said if they obtained the consent of three members they might trade in futures. Much would depend, of course, he said, on their financial strength and reputation in business.

Several members of the Cotton Exchange and visiting cotton men made brief statements of their views, for which they were thanked by Mr. Brand. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that the largest factor in the change in conditions was the refusal, during most of last season, of Government inspectors to accept any but the best grades of raw cotton in the manufacture of goods ordered by the Government, even though the goods were of a character and quality in which, in ordinary commercial usage, relatively low grade cotton is considered acceptable. This insistence on white cotton of the better grade, it was said, had produced, the Government now being by far the greatest consumer, an actual famine in the better grades, while at the same time leaving a large amount of low-grade cotton to be absorbed by the market as best it could.

There will be another hearing at 10:30 this morning.

COTTON TIGHTENS UP, GAINS 57 TO 112 POINTS

Great Advances Scored by August and September—Orders Hard to Fill.

After remaining irregular and feverish most of the day, but with a distinct upward tendency, cotton tightened up notably in the last hour on the local market yesterday, and closed firm at net advances of from 57 to 112 points, the active months being generally from 57 to 62 points higher, and the great advances scored by August and September on a few buying orders which it proved hard to fill.

The market opened at advances of from 20 to 57 points, but this level immediately brought offerings from the South and from Wall Street houses, on which prices dropped until active months were 20 to 30 points lower than Monday's close. Some unfavorable crop reports from private sources, however, caused a rally.

The rapidity with which the market seems to become oversold after each reaction, despite the continued outlook for a big crop and poor marketing facilities, excites considerable comment among market followers, and it is the general opinion that there has been more than is generally realized of accumulation of long hedges against cotton wanted for forward delivery by export houses, as soon as shipping becomes more plentiful.

FEDERAL LOAN TO GAS CO.

Union of Cincinnati Gets $2,000,000 to Extend Power Plant.

The Government has arranged to loan the Union Gas & Electric Company, of Cincinnati, a subsidiary of the Columbia Gas & Electric Company, $2,000,000 to extend its power plant. The purpose of the extension, it was learned yesterday, is to supply electric power to the new nitrate plant which the Government is building at Broadwell, Ohio, ten miles from Cincinnati. The loan will be repayable by the company at any time within five years.

The nitrate plant is one of the three which the Federal authorities decided some months ago to build in order to make American munition and fertilizer manufacturers independent of imports.

BELIEVE JAPAN KEPT FAITH.

Bankers Say Loan to China May Have Been Long Arranged.

Regarding the announcement that the Republic of China had obtained a loan of 80,000,000 yen ($40,000,000) from the Japanese Government, as reported in a special cable dispatch from Peking, published in yesterday's TIMES, New York bankers said that they had no information concerning the reported transaction, and some were inclined to doubt whether the loan had actually been consummated.

It was pointed out however, that in the event Japan had agreed to advance 80,000,000 yen to China, it must have made the arrangements prior to the recent restoration of the Four-Power Group which has under consideration plans for the making of a loan to China. Financiers representing the American banking interests in the Four-Power Group loan negotiations said that they felt quite certain that Japan would not have arranged to make independent advances of funds to China after it had agreed to join the United States, Great Britain, and France in the current undertaking to finance the Republic of China. Earlier in the year Japan advanced 1,000,000 yen, or $5,000,000, to China.

Up-State Road to Increase Fare.

ALBANY, Aug. 13.—The request of the United Traction Company for permission to increase the rate of trolley fare from 5 to 6 cents in Albany, Troy, Rensselaer, and other places in this vicinity was granted by the up-State Public Service Commission today. The order is to become effective on five days' notice by the company.

FOREIGN RATES IMPROVE.

Sharp Movements Occur in Spanish and Italian Quotations.

The appearance of the foreign exchange market was altered again yesterday, rather sharp movements occurring in Spanish and Italian rates parallel to a further improvement in French quotations. The excessive premium which has long existed in peseta quotations was reduced considerably by a drop in the quotation for cable remittances from 25.90 cents to the peseta to 24.95 cents. The fixed rate for lire exchange, applicable to commercial transactions under the supervision of the Italian Government Institute, which has a representative in this city, was advanced from 7.90 lire to the dollar to 7.50. A few weeks ago when measures were first taken to stabilize Italian rates, the lire quotation was as low as 9.10 to the dollar.

Franc exchange closed at 5.65¾ to the American dollar, compared with 5.67¼ on Monday and 5.70 last week. The decline of the peseta rate toward the normal parity and the advance of lire and francs was understood in banking offices to represent results attained by the Treasury Department in its efforts to improve the position of the dollar in foreign markets. The measures which are being taken are guarded and are known only in a general way to bankers of the financial district who are not close to the Government counsels on foreign exchange matters.

Norman H. Davis, a special representative of the Treasury Department, has been in Spain for some time, discussing means with Government officials there for stabilizing the dollar rate.

RUSSIAN BOND INTEREST DUE

National City Bank Expects Authorization for Payment Today.

A semi-annual interest payment is due today on the 5½ per cent. Imperial Russian Government Internal War Loan of 1916. The bonds of this loan were issued in rubles and they mature in February, 1926. Although coupons are payable at the Imperial Bank of Petrograd, arrangements were made some time ago by which registered holders of the ruble bonds sold in the United States would obtain their interest at the office of the National City Bank, which has been acting as American fiscal agent for the Imperial Russian Government.

At the office of the National City Bank yesterday it was said that authorization for the payment of the interest due today had not yet been received, but that in all likelihood it would be in the hands of the bank this morning. The payments, if made, as they probably will be, will be effected on the basis of 13 cents to the ruble. The normal equivalent of a ruble is 51.46 cents.

The National City Bank has to date paid regularly the interest on the 5½ and 6½ per cent. Russian bonds issued in dollars and also on the 5½ per cent. internal bonds. The internal 5½s were quoted yesterday at $103@$107 per 1,000 rubles. The amount of ruble bonds sold in the United States is not definitely known, but it is estimated to be from $15,000,0000 to $35,000,000.

The Brooklyn Trust Company was chartered in April, 1866, by Special Act of the Legislature. The charter grants certain powers, including authority:
To accept deposits of money subject to check.
To act as trustee under every description of trust, for individuals, estates, or corporations.
To act as executor under wills.
To act as agent for the management and custody of property.
The Company's clients benefit by its unusually extensive experience in the field of trust services, in which, acting under a special law, it was a pioneer.
Not until 1887 were enacted the banking laws from which are derived the powers of trust companies in general.
Inquiries are invited.

Forsyth Street Tenement Sale—Plaintiff Takes Over the Chatsworth Annex.

An east side tenement changed hands yesterday in a cash deal. The Mary Baldwin Schwab estate sold to a client of Samuel Kronsky the five-story building with stores at 147 Forsyth Street, on a lot 25 by 100 feet. Negotiations are pending for a resale. The sellers acquired the property recently as plaintiff in a foreclosure action.

Chatsworth Annex Sold.

To protect mortgage liens and accrued interest amounting to $234,729.98, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company purchased the Chatsworth Annex at 340 and 342 West Seventy-second Street.

The property was sold at public auction in the Vesey Street salesroom by Joseph P. Day. The knockdown bid, $225,000, was the only bid made.

Tenement Sales.

James H. Cruikshank, operator, sold to Ellise Levin the five-story double flat with two stores, 9 East 115th Street, on a plot 25 by 100, assessed at $23,000. M. L. Rosenfeld was the broker.

Richard Cummings sold to an adjoining owner 229 Mulberry Street, a three-story frame tenement on a lot 24.11 by 100 feet.

Store Rentals Advancing.

The Italian Discount and Trust Company, which recently leased the store at 399 Broadway, through the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, has closed a lease for the basement, the rentals aggregating about $7,500 until the date of expiration, Feb. 1, 1921. A renewal of the lease for this space has also been arranged by the same tenant with the owner of the property, the Equitable Life Assurance Society, for a term of ten years from Feb. 1, 1921, at $15,000 per annum, or three times the best offer ever received for the space.

Buying in the Bronx.

The Klaxon Company, one of the subsidiaries of the United Motors Corporation, acquired the block front on Avenue B. between Miller and Vanderpool Streets, Newark, from Hugh Kinnard, through C. F. Kraemer. Plans are under way for a large building to be used for storage and warehouse purposes. The same broker also sold to the Klaxon Company for the Paramount Realty Company the northwest corner of Avenue A and Miller Street.

New Jersey.

The Public Utilities Commission of New Jersey approved of the sale of two tracts of lands in Jersey City by the National Transit Company to the Federal Shipbuilding Company for $65,000. One of the tracts measures 60 by 1,474, and is located on the west bank of the Morris Canal, extending to the Hackensack River, and lies directly opposite the company's big yard on the Kearny side of the river. OCCUPATIONAL TAX IN REVENUE BILL

Levy of $10 a Year on Businesses and Professions, but Not on Employes.

WHOLESALE LICENSE $25

Publications and Press Associations Exempted from Wire Tax—McAdoo Before Committee Today.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Proprietors of all businesses and professional men, with only a few exceptions, will pay an annual Federal license of $10, and heads of wholesale concerns doing a yearly business of $200,000 or more an annual fee of $25, according to a schedule inserted today into the draft of the $8,000,000,000 revenue bill by the Ways and Means Committee. Farmers, mechanics, ministers, and teachers will be exempted from the $10 occupational tax, as will concerns doing an annual business of less than $2,000.

Secretary McAdoo will appear before the committee tomorrow in support of the Treasury plan for new excess profit and alternative war profit taxes. Members of the committee at the close of today's session said the bill would be ready for presentation to the House when that body reassembled next Monday.

Chairman Kitchin, in announcing tonight that the bill would provide means for raising all of the $8,000,000,000 originally allotted to be raised by taxation, said

"Today we put a 10 per cent. tax on all jewelry composed wholly or partly of platinum, in addition to the 10 per cent. manufacturers' tax on all forms of jewelry, as agreed to already by the committee. We require vendors to keep a record so the Government may know where all the platinum in the country is located, and how much.

"The committee adopted an occupation tax. There is no definite estimate yet as to how much it will raise in revenue. Under the plan adopted the proprietors of any concern doing a business of $2,000 a year or more will pay $10 annual tax, and wholesale concerns doing a business of $200,000 or more will pay a tax of $25 along similar lines. This does not apply to clerks or employes of concerns, nor to salaried men. Farmers, clergymen, school teachers, and mechanics also are exempted.

"The income tax was amended so as to provide for payment in Canada, or in any foreign country, of the taxes on incomes earned in those countries by American citizens or corporations, the tax to be paid as prescribed by the laws of those countries.

"We discussed the question of allowance for depletion of oil wells, but deferred action until tomorrow.

"The committee amended the 10 per cent. tax on amounts paid for leased wires and talking circuits, the amendment exempting newspapers, press associations, and periodicals, leaving the original provision standing as to everything else, including stock brokerage leased lines and circuits.

"When the committee adjourned there were pending proposals to increase the taxes on larger personal incomes by graduating the incomes of $70,000 a year or more at still higher rates, and to increase the taxes on all estates of $100,000 or more."

President Tells New Orleans Mayor the Government Hasn't the Power.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—In response to a message to President Wilson from Mayor Behrmann asking that the Federal authorities take over the New Orleans Electric Company, on account of labor troubles, Secretary Tumulty today told the Mayor the President held that the Federal Government had no power to take over such companies and believed it was imperatively necessary that local and State authorities should take action necessary for immediate relief.

MITCHEL MEMORIAL FORM.

Committee Seeks Suggestions from the People for Ideas.

The organization of the committee recently formed for the erection of a memorial to the late Major John Purroy Mitchel was completed yesterday by the appointment of an Executive Committee and a Finance Committee by the Chairman of the General Committee, Cleveland H. Dodge. The Executive Committee is composed of Robert Adamson, Chairman, and the following:

John G. Agar, Donn Barber, John McE. Bowman, Henry Bruere, William Hamlin Childs, Frederic R. Coudert, Robert W. de Forest, Cleveland H. Dodge, Frank L. Dowling, John J. Freschi, Herbert F. Gunnison, Lamar Hardy, Dr. John A. Harriss, Darwin R. James, Richard W. Lawrence, Alfred E. Marling, George McAneny, Dr. Sidney E. Mezes, William Fellowes Morgan, Henry Morgenthau, Judge George V. Mullan, Morgan J. O'Brien, E. H. Outerbridge, George W. Perkins, Nathaniel Phillips, Ralph Pulitzer, Theodore Rousseau, Alfred E. Smith, R. A. C. Smith, Oscar S. Straus, George W. Wickersham, William G. Willcox, and George T. Wilson.

The Finance Committee is composed of William C. Breed, Frank L. Babbott, George F. Baker, Jr., Charles L. Bernheimer, William A. Brady, Coleman du Pont, Haley Fiske, Joseph N. Francolini, Henry C. Frick, Elbert H. Gary, Otto H. Kahn, Samuel A. Lewisohn, Marcus Loew, Clarence H. Mackay, Lawrence McGuire, J. P. Morgan, William A. Prendergast, Seward Prosser, Charles H. Sabin, Jacob H. Schiff, James A. Stillman, Charles Triller, and Herbert K. Twitchell.

Cleveland H. Dodge is Chairman of the General Committee, George McAneny, John Mitchell, and Henry Morgenthau are Vice Chairmen; Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer, and John J. Freschi, Secretary. Chairman Adamson of the Executive Committee said yesterday that he had called a meeting of the committee for Monday afternoon next to start active work, and that this will soon be followed by a meeting of the Finance Committee.

"The meeting on Monday," said Mr. Adamson, "will consider what kind of a memorial we ought to erect. Several suggestions have already been made, some proposing some sort of useful public utility, such as a public bath, a municipal education centre, or a hospital for wounded soldiers, and others favoring a formal statue, a municipal landing place on the North River for distinguished visitors, or something of that nature. The committee has an entirely open mind on the subject and will be glad to receive suggestions from the public. If possible we want to reach a decision before the Finance Committee appointed by Mr. Dodge begins its campaign for funds, for obviously the amount of money to be raised will be determined by the form the memorial is to take."

MORE WOMEN IN BANKS.

Wall Street Expects New Draft Will Drain Their Man Force.

In the expectation that the new draft bill will shortly become law, and make serious inroads upon the men who are still employed in banking institutions, every effort is being made by some of the larger banks and trust companies to build up emergency forces upon which they can call as male help is taken away. The question of keeping clerical staffs up to the work that must go on if the banks are to function properly is so serious that it has been taken up at recent meetings of the directors of some of the downtown institutions employing large forces.

It was said yesterday that the National City Bank has already found places for 525 women and girls, most of whom have been engaged since the United States entered the war. The bank requires nearly 1,500 employes. To fit women for their new tasks the bank is conducting a training course lasting a month.

The Guaranty Trust Company, formerly operated almost exclusively by men outside of the stenographic and filing departments, now has more than 500 women in its various departments. The Guaranty has lost about 400 employes to war service, including five Vice Presidents, and it is believed that 300 more may be called out.

CAPT. MAY FORFEITED LIFE IN TESTING OILS

GOT AIR ENGINE LUBRICANT

Long Experiments Disclosed Fluid for Liberty Motor—Saved Millions in Cost.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The death of Captain O. J. May of Chicago, an officer of the Equipment Division of the Signal Corps, in consequence of the severe strain to which he was subjected while conducting a 65-hour test of a new oil for lubricating air engines, is held officially to be in the line of duty.

His death occurred May 22. The new oil is the result of a problem worked out with great care by officers of the Signal Corps in connection with the development of the Liberty engine. At first it was believed that castor oil must be used, or at least a blend of castor oil and some mineral oil. There seems to have been no definite determination among the aircraft organizations of the Allies as to what kind of oil should be used.

The character of the lubricating oil of the air engine is of the greatest importance, as the efficiency of the engine underlies the work of the airman, and his life often depends on its quality.

It was figured out that 5,000,000 gallons of castor oil at $3 a gallon would be required for our air service, and that quantity was not in existence. The Signal Corps then went to work on a blended mineral oil to cost 75 cents a gallon.

Captain May was set to the task of testing this oil and others on running engines. In twenty-five days he made thirty-seven tests on as many engines, where five tests a week were regarded as all that any one could do. Every oil was analyzed, weighed, and measured before and after the run of each engine.

Captain May was exhausted when he had completed these tests. He then set to work to make an altitude test in an airtight building with the air in it partly exhausted and kept in that state to simulate the atmosphere at high altitudes. The Captain ran several of these tests and made one of sixty-five hours' duration. He stood at watch without leaving the work all that time and duly recorded his data.

The strain on Captain May's vitality was too great, and when a few days later he went on an inspection trip he caught cold in a heavy storm. He died at Takoma Park, Md., near Washington. His work has provided the army and navy aviation services with a lubricating oil of the best quality at a cost one-fourth of what was estimated, and it is calculated he saved the Government fully $11,000,000. One feature of the tests of this oil is the fact that half of the quantity used may be cleaned and used over again.

One Woman Helps Government in Both Paper and Wood.

A little old woman, wearing a woolen dress, a black silk jacket, and a little round hat, entered a surface car at a transfer station yesterday, her arms so filled with a great bundle of rumpled newspapers that she could barely keep her balance.

"We've got to conserve," she said cheerfully to another woman who held a seat for her, as she tumbled into it, making a dive at the same time for an evening paper that some one had left lying there. "Is this yours? No? Well, the Government says we've got to save paper," she continued, as she added this last one to her already big package; "and I'll tell you it saves a lot of wood when I make my coffee in the morning."

of the cases. The death of the cook was followed by two of the women in the third class, which occurred just before the steamship put into Halifax, and they were buried at sea.

Health Officer Passed Ship.

The cases of mysterious illness were reported to the health officer by the surgeon when the steamship arrived at the quarantine station yesterday, and he did not regard the disease as contagious for healthy persons evidently because he had permitted the vessel to go to her pier. With the exception of the case of the assistant cook all the patients on the ship were passengers in the third class, and it had not affected those who were well fed before they came on board the ship. Every effort would be made, the agents of the line said yesterday, to fumigate the vessel and eradicate any germs that might remain in the third-class cabins, dining rooms and hospitals before she goes to sea again.

C. Stanley King, who arrived here yesterday from England, after being abroad doing war work since last December, contracted the Spanish influenza in England and lost nearly forty pounds in weight.

"The Spanish flue, as it is called in England for short," Mr. King said, "has spread all over the country, and caused schools, factories, and even shipyards to suspend work on account of the great number of pupils and workmen that have been laid up by it. The last reports I heard from France in official circles before leaving London was that the German Army was almost incapacitated by the Spanish flue in certain sectors, and the French, British, Canadian, and Australian soldiers were also great sufferers from it. The American soldiers have not yet been affected by the disease very much, which the medical experts put down to the fact that their physical condition was so good they were able to throw the germs off.

"The general impression, so far as I could ascertain, was that the spread of the Spanish flue to such a great extent was chiefly due to the people in Europe having to live upon bad bread, which poisoned all around the gums and undermined the public health. The disease has gone all through Europe from Constantinople to Caithness, and I do not think there is any doubt that it will come to the United States.

"I had a bad attack myself just before sailing, commencing with fever and delirium, and then the weakness which left me helpless. I was not able to leave my cabin after we sailed from England ten days ago, and had a submarine attack taken place I should have been unable to move."
